Ewell Boyd of Dixon, right, seems to be making a point as he jabs a finger at the chest of Gov. Daniel Walker. The meeting between the two took place Thursday in the Woolworth Store in Dixon. Walker was in Dixon briefly as part of a campaign tour in behalf of Democratic candidate for State Senator, 37th District, Ray A. "Dutch" Scott, pictured just to the Governor's left. The Dixon stop was part of a trip which started in DeKalb and went along Ill. 38, ending in Rock Falls. Another picture on page 9. (Telegraph Photo)

Tape reveals Nixon talked of Watergate on March 17

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tape recording played at the Watergate cover-up trial today disclosed that former President Richard M. Nixon discussed the vulnerability of some of his top aides to criminal charges on March 17, 1973 — four days before he claimed to have his first detailed knowledge about Watergate.

It was the first time that portion of the tape or a transcript of it has ever been made public.

In the conversation Nixon was told by John W. Dean III that he had attended meetings where political espionage, including burglary and wiretapping, was discussed but that he thought the plans had been "turned off."

The jury then heard Dean saying, "The next thing I heard was ... the break-in on June 17."

Nixon asked, "You heard discussion of that, but you didn't hear any discussion of bugging, did you, in that, your meetings? Or did you?"

Later the President is heard to say: "Where this thing leads, I mean in terms of the vulnerabilities and so forth. It's your view the vulnerabilities are basically Mitchell, Colson, Haldeman, indirectly, possibly directly..."

John N. Mitchell, Nixon's former attorney general two-time campaign manager, and H. R. Haldeman, his chief-of-staff, are two of the five defendants being tried for conspiring to coverup the Watergate break-in. Charles W. Colson, Nixon's special counsel, also had been charged with conspiracy, but he pleaded guilty in another case and the charges were dismissed.

The other defendants in the trial are John D. Ehrlichman, formerly Nixon's domestic counsel, and two men who worked for his re-election committee, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian.

The jurors, listening on headphones to their third White House tape in two days and following the taped conversation with a transcript, heard Dean tell Nixon that he too was vulnerable, to a degree.

"I know, I know, but ... you were in it after the deed was done."

Dean: "That's correct that I have no foreknowledge..."

Nixon: "...All the others that have participated in the God-damn thing, and therefore are potentially subject to criminal liability. You're not. That's the difference."

The conversation turned to Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy to Mitchell on the re-election committee, and Dean told the President, "If Jeb ever sees himself sinking, he will reach out to grab everybody he can get a hold of ... The unfortunate thing is, in this whole thing, Jeb is the most responsible man for the whole incident."

Magruder and Dean, less than a month later, went to U.S. attorneys with confessions of their part in the Watergate cover-up. Magruder, as well as Dean, each pleaded guilty to a single count of obstruction of justice and both are serving prison terms.

Dean earlier testified that Ehrlichman said he would talk to Nixon about demands for assurances of help from the White House.

Dean, testifying at the Watergate cover-up trial of Ehrlichman and four other men, said the demand was communicated to special counsel Charles W. Colson from E. Howard Hunt, one of the principals in the Watergate burglary.

On Jan. 3, 1973, Dean said, Colson reported that he had met with Hunt's attorney, William O. Bittman, who said Hunt was "most distraught, washed out, his ulcers were bothering him, his mental attitude was bad and he wanted to plead guilty" unless assurances were coming from the White House. "Ehrlichman said Colson should not get into any specific executive clemency or grants of clemency with Mr. Bittman," Dean said. He added that Ehrlichman said he "would take it up with the President himself and that Colson should not bring it up but wait until Ehrlichman gets back to him."

On Jan. 5, three days before Hunt and the six other men were scheduled to go on trial, Colson told Ehrlichman and Dean that "I have given Bittman assurances, but no hard commitments," Dean testified. He said that Colson related he had told the Hunt lawyer:

"You can tell Hunt a year is a long time and clemency is generally considered around Christmas time."

After hearing that, Dean said, he told Ehrlichman that the word certainly would spread among the other defendants and asked what he should do if they also made demands on the White House.

"He said give the others the same assurances but no hard commitments," Dean related.

Afterward, he said, he told former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, also one of the defendants in this case, about the assurances given to Hunt but said he could not recall Mitchell's response.

Dean also testified that Ehrichman and Mitchell became uneasy about the prospect of re-election committee official Frederick LaRue traveling about the country soliciting funds without being able to say what the money would be used for.

Statewide referendum concerns amendatory veto power

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The only statewide referendum on the November ballot involves a complicated change to the constitution which both sides admit few voters understand.

The question is whether Gov. Daniel Walker should retain his innovative and controversial power of amendatory veto — making changes in legislation without vetoing the whole bill.

"It's not an issue that hits people in their pocketbooks for taxes," said Rep. Charles J. Feck Jr., R-Chicago, chief backer of the constitutional amendment. "It's not a blood and guts issue. It's a subtle but very important governmental change."

The loudest opposition to the proposed change has come from Walker himself, who has assigned the task of working against the amendment to his deputy, Victor de Grazia, temporarily on leave from the governor's office.

"It's very serious, but very difficult because it's so complicated," de Grazia said in an interview.

The unusual power to rewrite legislation was given to the governor in the 1970 Illinois Constitution. It permits the governor to return a bill "with specific recommendations for change." If a majority of the legislators agrees with the changes, it goes back to the governor for his certification. If the legislature does not agree with the recommendations, the bill is treated as a regular veto.

Fleck believes the amendatory veto gives the governor an inordinate power to shape legislation and represents an intrusion of one branch of government into another.

"The governor is given more veto powers and freedoms than in any other state," Fleck said in an interview. "By using the amendatory veto he can now legislate on almost a take-it-or-leave-it basis. The referendum is an attempt to bring the executive and legislative branches to a position of co-equals in government."

De Grazia rejects the notion that the amendatory veto weakens the legislative branch, in fact, he says, it strengthens the legislature.

"It allows the governor to partially veto a bill and the legislature can either accept it or reject it," de Grazia said. "A majority of bills come through the conference committee. The bill is changed and the members don't know a damn thing about it."

Other opponents contend that the amendatory veto gives the governor the authority to clean up otherwise good legislation that contains a flaw, which simply might be an oversight.

Both Walker, a Democrat, and his predecessor, Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, used the amendatory veto. In most cases, the legislature agreed with the governor's changes.

The full extent of the governor's power to rewrite legislation has never been determined. The Illinois Supreme Court did rule that Ogilvie had gone too far in completely rewriting a bill providing state aid to parochial schools and invalidated the law.

The high court did not specify, however, just how much rewriting a governor can do under the Constitution.

A majority of those persons voting in the election are needed to approve the constitutional amendment. It may also pass if three-fifths of those voting on that particular question favor it, and Fleck said "there is a good chance" of that happening.

Neither Fleck nor de Grazia believe the issue is a political one, and all activities have been limited so far to rounding up support from legislators in hopes that they will plug the issue while campaigning.

"We haven't come to grips with it yet," de Grazia said. "But I hope to come up with some ideas." He said some radio spots may be used shortly before the election Nov. 5.

Symptoms of recession becoming more evident

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Ford prescribes anti-inflation medicine for the economy, the symptoms of a recession are growing more pronounced.

The real value of the goods and services churned out by the economy showed the third consecutive quarterly decline.

The face value of the gross national product for July through September rose 8.3 per cent projected at an annual rate, to $1,114.6 billion, the Commerce Department said Thursday. Yet inflation sapped the dollars of 11.5 per cent of their value in the same period, so the real value of the economy's output shrunk by 2.9 per cent.

That left the output just slightly ahead of where it was in 1972. It was the first time since the 1960-61 recession the output dropped in three successive quarters. The most recent recession, that of 1969-70, was marked by only two consecutive quarters of decline.

There are other symptoms, such as a maximum drop of 1.9 per cent in industrial production so far, which are less severe than in the most recent recessions.

Yet even before the latest national product figures came out, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns and other economists dubbed the current economic slump a recession.

The administration's contention, repeated anew by Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent and his top economists, is that the decline in the economy's output is the product of isolated quirks. The Arab oil embargo, higher oil prices, overeager stockpiling by industry in anticipation of inflationary price increases and a home building industry staggering under high interest rates are examples.

"It appears to me the economy is actually moving sideways at the current time," said economist James L. Pate.

"We're talking about sideways waffling," said Dent.

Economists such as Leif H. Olsen of New York's First National City Bank argue that inflation's doom already is sealed and the nation "now confronts a decidedly new situation with new and different complications."

While supporting the spending programs in the President's economic proposals, Olsen said in a recent speech that the proposed 5 per cent surtax "is ill-timed politically — as Mr. Ford himself acknowledged — and it is far worse timed economically."

Dent rejected any notion that the proposed tax increase endangers the economy.

Scott defends validity of his opinions

Atty. Gen. William Scott declared his staff constitutes the best law firm in the nation as he defended the validity of attorney general opinions handed down by his office.

The state's top elected lawyer asserted in the five years he has held the office not one of his opinions has been overturned by the courts.

He was responding to a reporter's question in a press conference before he spoke at the testimonial reception for Sen. David Shapiro, R-Amboy.

It has been noted for Scott many of the attorney general opinions handed down by his office are not taken seriously by local officials.

The attorney general responded the opinions handed down by his office are advisory legal opinions, but, he observed, while they are not binding, when a local official acts in accordance with the opinions of the attorney general he is granted sovereign immunity from legal liability in performance of his office.

On the other hand, Scott noted, if a public official ignores an attorney general's opinion, he loses sovereign immunity and acts upon his own.

Scott explained this means, should a court later find he is derelict in fulfilling his duty as denoted in the statutes and interpreted by an attorney general's opinion, he must face the legal consequences on his own.

In the past months there have been instances when the state's attorneys in Lee, Ogle and Bureau Counties had disagreed publicly with attorney general opinions.

Lee County State's Atty. Patrick Ward voiced disagreement with an attorney general's opinion regarding whether publicly elected officials could receive raises in pay during the terms of their office.

Bureau County State's Atty. Randolph Combs, did not press an attorney general opinion regarding the conflict of interest of a member of that County Board because, "I don't agree with the opinion."

Former Ogle County State's Atty. Bruce Wellman, disagreed with an attorney general's opinion regarding the open meetings act, because, he said, he had read court cases which he felt disagreed with the attorney general's opinion.

Scott would not comment on how he felt about the use of his opinions by local officials.

He buttressed his remarks about the legal competence of his staff by referring to the court action earlier this week which upheld the attorney general in his contention the State Election Board had erred in its interpretation of the state ethics laws when it ruled political committees for candidates or parties need not disclose sources of their revenues or the disbursements.

Scott hits at Walker as big spender

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

The Illinois attorney general, the president of the Illinois Senate and 275 persons turned out Thursday for a testimonial reception for David Shapiro, R-Amboy, held in Emerald Hill.

William Scott, attorney general, principal speaker, said, "It is appropriate Gov. Daniel Walker has singled out this legislative district as crucial and has made Sen. Shapiro one of the targets for Democrats to defeat."

"What you people do in the next few weeks is going to determine where the state will go for many years."

Scott, like most Republican speakers, was alluding to the one-seat margin the Republicans currently enjoy in the State Senate and urging the GOP faithful to return all GOP incumbents to office.

He cautioned, "If Republicans lose the majorities we have in the legislative houses, we will give the free-spending Democrats a free hand."

Scott called the Republican majority in the General Assembly, "the watchdog for taxpayers' dollars."

He charged Gov. Walker is the biggest spending governor in the history of the state.

Referring to the trouble he has had with Gov. Walker flooding various code departments of the state with lawyers, the attorney general alleged, "He is spending $4 million for lawyers who are rendering no services or are duplicating legal services which are already being provided."

The attorney general declared senators like Shapiro can check this expanding spending and asserted, "Gov. Walker does not want tough hard questioning senators."

Scott said when he was state treasurer he became aware the state has not properly funded pension funds for public employees.

"There has not been any pension payment missed but," the attorney general warned, "if we should see a downturn in the economy, these funds would be in jeopardy."

Scott said when Republicans first proposed a plan, which was defeated, to fully fund the pension it would take 20 years; now, he announced, it will take 50 years to correct the funding.

He said Sen. Shapiro, who is chairman of the Pension Fund Commission, is working now on this problem.

"To eliminate Shapiro from the Senate would be the greatest tragedy," Scott maintained.

Scott was introduced by J. Herbert Henning, chairman, Lee County Republican Central Committee, who said, "Hopefully, I am introducing the next governor."

William Harris, R-Pontiac, president, Illinois Senate, spoke briefly and also noted Shapiro is targeted for defeat by Gov. Walker.

"He's a target because the governor wants control of the Senate and if that happens we lose the checks and balance between the legislature and the governor's office," contended Harris.

He praised Sen. Shapiro by stating, "Certain people are naturally equipped to work in the legislative process and Sen. Shapiro has natural legislative instincts and devotion."

Harris said the Republicans would attempt to overturn Walker's veto of fund to re-establish AMTRAK service from Chicago to Clinton, Iowa, and said he had not taken a "nose-count," but he knows the "overwhelming majority of Republican senators will vote to overturn this veto."

Iberians closer than we realize

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco's highly publicized reclaiming of power after near-death in July has a trapdoor-under-the-feet feeling in the wake of the violent upheavals.

Spain is not Portugal, nor is Portugal Spain, but the Iberian peninsula is much more of a unit than we at this distance may realize. Its internal tremors flow interchangeably and are nearly impossible to isolate.

These are symbolized by the Sept. 13 Basque guerrilla bombing in Madrid, the most lethal since Premier Luis Carrero Blanco was killed last December.

Spain's Chief of State will be 82 on Dec. 5. Fully, his name is Francisco Franco y Bahamonde and, correctly, his title is "By the grace of God, Caudillo of Spain."

He is from the province of Galicia, in the northwest, and has his summer White House (and frequent refuge) on the winding road to Galicia's remote Meiras. But Franco has ruled from a four-centuries-old palace at El Pardo, outside Madrid, where he gave me the first interview he had given since Spain's Civil War.

With only an interpreter present (Spain's Chief of Protocol), for Franco's English is very limited, we sat in his library at El Pardo under a ceiling depicting Apollo crowning the arts. Only five-feet-three tall, Franco seemed dominated by the surroundings. But he was completely relaxed. Throughout the several hours he never moved from his chair.

Franco made only slow gestures as our conversation developed and is, in fact, a slow-acting man—so slow-acting that, even in the country of "Manana," this is widely regarded as Franco's trademark.

Franco described Spain to me as a "dulce anarquia"—a gentle anarchy. "The surface is sometimes calm," he said, "and deceptively so, while much boils underneath. But the thrifty sea-minded northerners like myself remain Galicians; Basques remain Basques; the people of Catalonia in the East (Barcelona), busy and noisy as castanets, remain Catalonians and even Madrid's people remain uniquely Madrilenian.

"We are a very compartmentalized country," Franco told me.

The world of the Iberian peninsula was the world of nations condemned to live forlornly its formative centuries. While Western Europe exuded the Renaissance, and then sought the rich rewards of mercantilism, Spain and Portugal assigned to themselves the mission of catholicizing the earth. They literally squandered their explorers' empires on the Cross.

Next to Switzerland, Spain is Europe's tallest country. Her harsh, forbidding soil has always stood higher, contained less water and extracted a greater toll of human toil than any other Western European country.

Franco's claim to constitutional legitimacy rests on a national referendum of July, 1947. It approved his designation as lifelong ruler, the abolishment of Spain's republican form of government, inherited from 1931, and the restoration of a monarchy with Franco holding the power to designate a king to succeed him.

For years Don Juan of Bourbon tried to force Franco's hand into direct succession. However, in July 1969 Franco bypassed the royal father and designated as the future king Prince Juan Carlos, who presided over the Cabinet during Franco's near-death illness.

Franco will be buried in the astounding tomb complex called the Valley of the Fallen near Madrid. But you have to see it to believe it.

It has tremendous 22-ton bronze doors and a granite cross, a football-field high, beautiful and severe. There is an immense, long tapestried tunnel leading to a crypt and your eardrums throb to the crash of an organ. The air is damp where, behind the rocky walls, lay the bones of 60,000 men killed in the Spanish Civil War.

You can see, behind the altar, two gilt-and-scarlet chairs. They are intended for Juan Carlos as king and his wife, the former Princess Sophie of Greece, who will be queen. The chairs await the funeral of Franco.

Who is really hurting?

Between 1968 and 1971, the United States imposed a ban on imports of chrome from Rhodesia because of disapproval of that country's racial policies.

The embargo had a number of unfortunate results, as Martin N. Ornitz, president of the stainless Steel Division of Colt Industries, testified before the House Subcommittee on Mines and Mining last spring.

Among them was the creation of an artificial shortage in a vital industrial raw material for which the United States depends 100 per cent upon imports from abroad. It also prompted the expansion by Rhodesia of its own ferro chrome industry until it now competes directly with that of the United States.

Whether this political decision gained this country any points among "Third World" nations is debatable. But a move is on in Congress, which President Ford has indicated he supports, to reimpose the embargo on Rhodesian chrome.

A curious double standard seems to be followed by those who oppose any business dealings with a racist government like Rhodesia but view with equanimity the idea of purchasing chrome ore from Russia.

Perhaps it is because Rhodesia is not only a capitalist country but one that discriminates against blacks, while the Soviet Union is a socialist country that oppresses everyone equally regardless of race, creed or color.

In any event, the embargo movement comes at a time when U.S. consumption of chrome has, by legislative fiat, been greatly increased.

The catalytic converters on the exhaust systems of most new cars use from 30 to 60 pounds per car of stainless steel containing about 11.5 per cent chromium. The automotive industry's requirements for the 1975 model year will be in excess of 100,000 tons of this stainless steel. The demand could be more than doubled for the 1976 model year.

Yet at the same time that Congress is considering a new prohibition against importing chrome from Rhodesia, it continues to permit the export of stainless steel scrap rather than encouraging its domestic recycling.

Stainless steel includes not only chrome but nickel and as Ornitz further pointed out in his testimony, every pound of chrome or nickel exported as scrap means that we must import another pound of chrome or nickel in replacement.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

A caravan of 17 Democratic candidates for state representatives on the Nov. 3 at-large election will tour Lee County Monday.

Stanley Weber, superintendent of schools, will speak to the members of the Rock River Chapter, Illinois Society of Professional Engineers, on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Manor, Dixon.

Two evening orientation classes for new volunteers at Dixon State School are scheduled for Oct. 20 and 27, from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m., at the Girls Activity Center. Staff members of DSS will inform the prospective volunteers of the institution's training program for the retarded.

25 YEARS AGO

The Dixon bus terminal, which for several years has been housed in the city-owned building on Galena Avenue and River Street, is to be moved to a new location.

The Garden Department of the Dixon Woman's Club will hold its regular meeting Monday afternoon, Oct. 17, at 2 o'clock at the Loveland Community House. Round table of timely garden topics and material available for winter arrangements will be discussed.

The Dixon Lions Club today announced plans for the sixth annual Halloween party for the youth of Dixon to be held Monday evening at the high school. The plans provide for a costume parade which will form at Highland Avenue and First Street and will pass through the business district, going east on First Street to Galena Avenue, then north to soyd street and west to the high school, where it will disband.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

The laws governing and regulating County Boards generally are archaic. Unfortunately, the Board system has remained at a status quo while the requirements of government have expanded. The business of County Boards must be handled on a regular business-like day to day basis, not on a once a month plus special meeting basis.

Having served over two years as chairman of the Board of Lee County, I consider it timely to publicly report my observations and feelings to the taxpayers of Lee County, as well as to recommend a course of action to resolve the problems that exist.

I will qualify my judgement by stating that I have spent most of each day for the last four weeks at my desk in the courthouse trying to help solve problems with the Nursing Home Budget along with many other things. I have observed like never before and received no additional compensation for being present.

First of all, one must realize that the operation of Lee County is a two million dollar business, per year. Then, consider the fact that the Chairman of the Board is a part-time position. No business of this magnitude, to my knowledge, is conducted on a part-time basis, nor can it be done so successfully. Granted, we have both elected and appointed officials and each has an abundance of work to perform in their respective departments. The elected County Officials are all regulated by law as to what functions they will perform in our County Government. The appointed Officials act within the structure of the law, along with the proposals forthcoming from the Board.

As you know, the County Board consists of 28 people, seven from each of the four districts, elected by the people of each respective district. In turn, the Chairman is elected by fellow Members of the Board. The County Board is then subdivided into Committees, as follows: Finance, Nursing and Health, Legislative, County Service, Building, Li-

Salaries and Executive and Claims.

The problem lies in the fact that each committee goes its own way, doing "its own thing," with relatively no concurrence on matters pertinent to the Chairman. The Chairman does not see Board Members until the monthly meeting, except on rare occasions. This leaves no time for business accumulating during the month that should have been completed previously.

Each member of each committee receives a per diem salary $25 for each meeting they attend, consequently, a committee of four people would receive $100 for a respective meeting. At times a committee meeting is called, but a quorum does not appear, therefore no official action can be taken and the members present collect per diem. With advance planning, each meeting should yield a definitive answer, however, at times, several meetings are conducted with no firm drawn conclusion.

With the above facts in mind, it is obvious that many tax dollars are wasted by not having a Chairman on a regular basis who would be responsible and in charge of all timely functions of our County Government.

To resolve this problem, I propose to the taxpayers of Lee County the following corrective action:

1. The chairman of the board be a full time 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., five-day a week basis as in some counties.

2. The chairman be given authority to establish joint purchasing, wherever possible.

3. The chairman, and only the chairman, be given authority to call committee meetings and then only when necessary.

4. The chairman be given the authority to attend all meetings relevant to public relations between cities and all other governmental bodies. Many of these cannot be attended by a part time chairman.

5. The chairman be given the authority to be present to discuss problems with Lee County taxpayers.

6. The chairman be given the authority to pass judgment on problems that presently go to committees and presently wait 30-60 and even 90 days or more, as the case may be, for an answer and maybe never get out of committee.

7. The chairman be given authority to pursue contracts that have been let to expedite their conclusion without waiting months, or years, for completion.

8. The chairman be allowed authority to expedite requests from all the elected and appointed officials of the county in order to avoid them having to wait until Board Meeting day, which could be 30 days later to resolve their problems.

9. The chairman be allowed to communicate with all the employees of the County in any matter relative to their positions.

All the preceding recommendations are relative to the other members of the board being fully informed of the requests, before they attend board meetings and are expected to vote cold on issues without being fully informed.

The foregoing is presented in the best interest of the county, in my judgment, for whomsoever may have the responsibility of being our chairman in the years to come.

Why have a chairman if there is no responsibility allowed except to conduct the monthly meeting?

Your letters and phone calls regarding this matter will be greatly appreciated. Let us update our system which will constitute a financial savings for our county.

August H. Fraza

Chairman, Lee County Board

Aid gobbled up

WASHINGTON (LENS)—America has provided nearly three-quarters of the food assistance given to developing countries during the past decade but most of that was given in the 1960s, when food was plentiful, its price was low and commercial sales were harder to come by.

Last week, in his speech to the United Nations, President Ford promised a new effort to stave off famine. But he phrased his promise carefully; the United States will increase the amount it spends on food aid.

Last year it spent $832 million; to buy an equivalent amount this year would cost $1.2 billion, according to the Department of Agriculture's estimates. Luckily this year's wheat crop, though not as large as had been hoped, has set a new record and so has the rice crop; the two grains, it is hoped, will make up some of the shortfall in soy beans and maize.

Where the aid goes may be more important than how much there is. Last year the biggest recipient of free or subsidized food was South Vietnam, with $156 million worth, followed by the Republic of Korea ($96 million), Indonesia ($76 million), Cambodia ($72 million), Bangladesh ($60 million), Pakistan ($53 million) and Israel ($51 million).

According to newspaper reports, Henry Kissinger won a modest victory in the battle inside the Administration over the amount of food aid that America could afford to give, persuading the President to approve a figure of $1.35 billion. In practice, however, a wary eye is likely to be kept on commercial sales abroad and stocks and prices at home.

Last year agricultural exports brought in $17 billion and helped to put the balance of international payments back, temporarily, in the black; they are even more important now that the balance has sunk back into deficit ($2,740 million in the second quarter) under the weight of higher oil prices. Other government departments, such as Agriculture and the Treasury, were concerned lest even a tiny increase in subsidized food shipments abroad might set off panic buying at home and force prices up.

Prices in the United States are still soaring; the consumer price index rose more in August than it has in any month since 1947, apart from the spurts after price controls were taken off. Food went up by 1.4 per cent after seasonal adjustment, an annual rate of 16.8 per cent, with meat and poultry leading the way.

The President's battle to control the budget and thus, he hopes, the price level has got off to a poor start in Congress. His first proposal, to defer for three months a 5.5 per cent rise in the pay of federal employees, was turned down by the Senate with 15 Republicans joining the 49 Democrats; they felt that civil servants should not be singled out.

Moreover Congress is close to presenting the President with a new engine of inflation. Both houses have passed a bill requiring a substantial share—20 per cent at once, rising to 30 per cent—of imports of petroleum to be carried in American tankers; at present 96 per cent is carried, more cheaply, by foreign ships.

The oil companies protest that the bill would add billions of dollars to the cost of oil, but Congress has listened instead to the maritime industry and its powerful and generous trade unions.

Berry's World

"Thanks — I needed that!"

By DON OAKLEY

The ability of American inventors and patent owners to capitalize on their creative efforts has been seriously eroded in recent years by government action and court decisions.

So claims Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., an organization of patent holders.

The result, it says is a diminishing value of patents that has left many corporations uncertain whether they want to continue making the heavy investment of manpower and capital necessary to ensure a continuing flow of new products.

The problem, it seems has arisen from a confusion of two different objectives. One is the protection and encouragement intended for inventors by patent law; the other is the opposing thrust of antitrust legislation.

Preoccupied with antitrust objectives, the U.S. Justice Department has attacked, or is considering attacking, certain long-accepted patent licensing arrangements.

For example, so-called "tie-in" agreements, whereby a licensed corporation is permitted to produce a patented product provided it uses certain key parts manufactured by the original patent holder, have in virtually all cases been disallowed.

In cases where the ability of a licensed company to produce a satisfactory product may be involved, both the public and industry are badly served by antitrust overkill, says the organization.

Another example is the "grant back." For instance, X is willing to license Y, providing that Y will grant back to X a free license to any improvements Y makes. The object is to prevent Y from going into business under the license and then put X out of business by refusing to license X. The Justice Department has expressed its displeasure with most "grant backs."

The principal purpose of the antitrust laws is to prevent monopolies. But patents are not true monopolies, points out T. L. "Ted" Bowes, executive director of Intellectual Property Owners. They are a grant of exclusive rights to the holder for a limited period of time so that he can capitalize on his investment of time and money in creating a new product or process.

When the energy crisis hit, the United States learned to its dismay what it means to be dependent upon foreign sources. If American technology is held back by an emasculated patent system, says Bowes, the nation could find itself dependent on foreigners for much more than energy.

Hospital a bargain compared to prison

If the doctors who treated ex-President Nixon's phlebitis were to sock their patient with a bill of some half-million dollars, there would be cries of indignation, and not all of them from taxpayers concerned that the tab would eventually be passed on to Uncle Sam.

No one seems upset by the fact that the legal costs facing a number of former associates of Mr. Nixon are up in that stratospheric range.

The services of a man who saves your life or your health would seem to deserve a greater reward than those of a man who saves you from jail (and sometimes doesn't). Yet for some reason we are more outraged by a high fee charged by a skilled physician than by the much higher fee usually commanded by a member of a prestigious law firm.

Watergate has not only been a blot on the legal profession, with more than two-score of those involved being lawyers, it has also been a financial bonanza.

According to AP writer Harry F. Rosenthal, former secretary of commerce Maurice H. Stans' legal bill for his 48-day trial in the Vesco case was $380,793. That of his co-defendant, former attorney general John N. Mitchell, was $393,346, plus $79,044 for expenses.

Those tabs are being picked up by a trust fund handling money left over from Richard Nixon's 1972 reelection committee. At latest report, the committee had spent or owed $1.9 million in legal costs.

The just-begun trial of the five highest-ranking figures in the Watergate coverup, of which Mitchell is one, is expected to rack up legal costs of several million dollars.

Friends of H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, are trying to raise $400,000 for his legal expenses. John Ehrlichman says he'll need $300,000.

Two Watergate figures avoided some of this problem, however. Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R. Martinez, indicted in both the Watergate break-in and the "plumbers" operation, declared themselves paupers.

True, they were convicted and went to prison but so have most of those who spent tens of thousands of dollars on their defenses and appeals in various other Watergate cases. If a surgeon's scalpel slips, at least you can sue him for malpractice. But if a lawyer fails to win your case, his bill still remains payable in full.

Premiere showing of film

The Dixon Theatre has been selected for a premiere showing Wednesday, at 9:30 a.m., of the motion picture "Time to Run." World Wide Pictures, the producers of the film, announced the appointment of Robert Miller as executive chairman for the Dixon area showings. Miller is enlisting the support of numerous civic leaders and other residents to formulate plans for the premiere.

According to Miller, "Time to Run" is a new feature-length color release from the Billy Graham Film Ministry studios. He said he believes "the film will have an immeasurable positive impact on the lives of both teen-agers and their parents in our community," and added that, "if Dixon residents planned to see only one motion picture all year, this is the one they should see."

A representative of World Wide Pictures, George Gearhart, will be working closely with Miller and the committee in preparation for the showing. Gearhart offered this description of the film: "Time to Run" is a realistic and deeply moving portrayal of the tensions created in a family where the son's values and ideologies differ from his father's. Love and communication are crippled by the impenetrable silences between them. Further confrontations develop between the young man and his girl friend when she becomes involved in the 'Jesus Movement.' The viewer encounters moments of humor, suspense and warmth throughout the film."

CROP Hunger walk set

Hunger and despair haunt the refugee in time of disaster. Roaming in search of food, water, and shelter, this child in the drought-plagued Sahel region of Africa is typical of millions of men, women, and children forced to leave their homes each year.

CROP, the Community Hunger Appeal, provides emergency help in the form of food, blankets, and health supplies and then goes on to lend a hand in the rebuilding task.

Dozens of youth from Lee County churches, 4-H Clubs and junior and senior high schools will walk to the Lee County 4-H Center Sunday, from three communities: Franklin Grove, on the Franklin Road; from Amboy, on U.S. 52; and from Dixon on U.S. 52. The Franklin Grove area walkers will have a seven-mile walk. From Amboy walkers will have a five-mile journey. Dixon participants, who will meet at the National Food Store parking lot no later than 12:45, will walk 12 miles to reach their destination.

For additional information call the Rev. Tom W. Shepherd, 288-1222 or Matthew Rhodes, 288-2419. Walkers' papers may be picked up at the First Christian Church and other downtown churches as well as at the high school.

Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF scheduled

Great hopes from little pumpkins grow. UNICEF pumpkins that is.

This year the Dixon Church Council is sponsoring Trick or Treat for UNICEF. Porch lights of area houses should be turned on for the youngsters of Dixon who will be collecting from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Oct. 27.

Youngsters in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Middle East need the programs of improved food production, water supplies, disease control and education that UNICEF helps provide. Dropping 25 cents into a UNICEF orange and black carton makes possible 200 vitamins for a mother and child.

Meals on Wheels program in Rochelle

ROCHELLE—A "Meals on Wheels" program sponsored by the Rochelle Ministerial Association, shifted into first gear Tuesday afternoon at a meeting at the Rochelle Church of God.

Women representing 12 area churches and clergy were present to hear plans for the proposed program.

The "Meals on Wheels" program is keyed to people who are handicapped, live alone or are over 65 living on a fixed income. The Rochelle group plans a five day a week program, serving a well balanced nutritional noon meal.

Discussion centered around a screening process the group felt necessary and it was suggested that Drs. L. T. Koritz and John Prabhakar, Rev. John Place, Mrs. Robert Colville and Mrs. George Kerchner be contacted to temporarily serve as a screening committee. Program director and dietitian will be Mrs. Diane Marty of the Faith Lutheran Church with Mrs. Jeri Johns acting as secretary for the program. Mrs. Sharon Lineberry of the Rochelle Christian Church was named contact chairman, and it will be her duty to inform the volunteer workers from the various churches as to the days they will be needed as drivers or kitchen help.

The Flag Township Board of Auditors has given $1,575 out of their Revenue Sharing Funds to help give the "Meals on Wheels" a three month start. This money has been budgeted for equipment, food and the salary for a cook who will work a three hour a day, five day a week schedule. There will be a charge for the meals with no price having been set.

It is hoped the program will be in operation by November, and anyone interested or wishing further information on the eligibility of the program, are asked to contact either Rev. John Place at 562-7575 or the Rochelle Chamber of Commerce office at 562-4189.

Evangelist at Multi-media at area church

Calvary Baptist Church, 313 Van Buren Avenue, Dixon, will be conducting a week of Revival Services, October 20-27, at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

The Evangelist Herbert T. White, Greenville, S.C., will be preaching every service. Evangelist White was born in Atlanta, Ga., and was called to preach at the age of 34. He entered full time evangelism and revival ministry in January 1971. Before his call into the ministry, Evangelist White was employed for 15 years as a mechanical shop supervisor with Sears, Roebuck & Company.

He served his country in World War II, and is holder of the purple Heart, Presidential Unit Citation, Combat Infantryman Badge, and three Combat Oak Leaf Clusters.

For fifteen years following his conversion, White served in evangelistic song leading. He received the B.A. degree from Bob Jones University in 1958, and spent the next ten years as a pastor in Ohio. During this period he founded the Woods and Water Christian Retreat and Youth Camp in Mansfield.

He returned to Atlanta in the summer of 1968 as pastor of the Hawthorne Baptist Church and two and one-half years later he entered his present ministry.

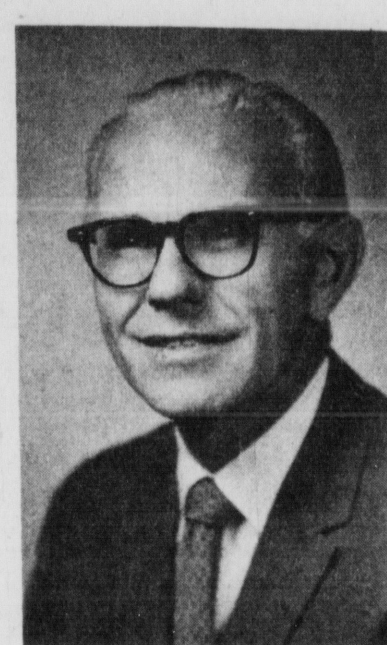

The Rev. Sonny Witsman and Calvary Baptist Church extends an invitation to the public to attend every service. On Sundays White will speak at 10:45, 9:45 a.m., and 7 p.m. The Oct. 26 service will be a special Youth Emphasis Night at 7 p.m.

Marvin R. Thompson, Director of Development at the St. Paul Bible College, will be making a presentation Oct. 25, at Community Alliance Church.

Thompson, a graduate of St. Paul in 1935, served as pastor and evangelist in the North-western District of The Christian and Missionary Alliance for over 30 years. He has been associated with St. Paul Bible College since 1967 in the area of public relations and development.

The presentation is a multi-media production and is widely acclaimed as being most outstanding. Employing seven projectors and associated control and sound equipment, it vividly portrays God's hand at work in the preparation of young lives for taking the gospel message to the ends of the earth.

The public is invited to attend the service starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Lord's House

... a Treasury of Man's Noblest Aspirations in Religious Architecture

The United States Air Force Academy Cadet Chapel (COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO)

With its 17 silvery spires knitting 150 ft. into crisp Colorado skies the Cadet Chapel helps make the Air Force Academy Colorado's No. 1 tourist attraction. Silhouetted against the majestic Rampart Range, this edifice radiates a feeling of serenity, prompting the viewer to breathe a fervent prayer for the welfare of our future Air Force leaders.

Since a comprehensive religious program is required for every Air Force Academy Cadet, this architecturally-imposing structure plays a sizeable role in the moral training of our young airmen. Due to this need to afford equal spiritual worship opportunity to every cadet, five years of extensive planning and coordination ensued between architects and Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish representatives. Eventually, the unique 3-chapels-under-one-roof concept was adopted and construction began August 28, 1969 - being completed in 1963.

The Protestant Chapel comprises the entire upper level; the Catholic Chapel, Jewish Chapel, and Meeting Room (for other denominations) share the terrace level below.

The Protestant Chapel, much the largest, seats 1200 with a choir loft for 100. From the entrance is a breath-taking view of the nave and altar area. Multi-colored shafts of light stream through inch-thick stained glass walls supported by aluminum tetrahedrons joined in sharp angles 99 ft. from the terrazzo floor. Above the massive crescent-shaped reredos of the main altar floats a slim 46 ft. aluminum cross. Facing the choir loft, the view is startling in its grandeur: one of the nation's most magnificent organ pipework displays. Three levels of pipes (4,334 in all), varying from 32 ft. to the size of a lead pencil, complete the scene of one of America's most impressive places of worship.

On the terrace level is Our Lady of the Skies Chapel. This Catholic Chapel is much smaller, seating 500, with a choir loft for 80. However, it too is impressively beautiful. An imposing reredos, 45 ft. long by 18 ft. high, forms a backdrop for the main altar, a gift of the late Cardinal Spellman. On the reredos are two giant marble sculptures, one of the Guardian Angel and the other of Our Lady of the Skies. Walls are amber glass panels accented by multi-colored stained glass windows; while 14 sculptured white marble Stations of the Cross enhance the side walls. This chapel has a fine 1,950-pipe organ, a beautiful Baptistry and Blessed Sacrament Chapel.

Next is the exquisite Jewish Chapel, circular in form, which seats 100. It is enclosed in cypress stanchions separated by translucent purple-violet pebble glass. The foyer floor, paved in brownstone from Jerusalem, was donated by Israeli Defense Forces. The Aron-Ha-Kodesh, or Holy Ark, which protects the Torah, is the heart of the Chapel. The Eternal Light, Ner Tamid, hangs from the ceiling, clustered with the Star of David. The Menorah, Kiddish Cup and other ecclesiastical appointments complete this impeccably-tasteful and appropriate chapel.

If you are ever in the area, you'll find a day spent at the Air Force Academy one of your most rewarding experiences.

Energy crisis brings surge in demand for Franklin stoves

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — An old-fashioned stove is becoming a hot seller: the Ben Franklin model.

On the eve of the nation's bicentennial, an updated version of the Franklin stove, a cast iron device Ben invented in 1740 to warm colonial homes, is catching on with those unhappy with the high price of heating oil. The original Franklin stove, or Pennsylvania stove as Ben called it, bettered the efficiency of open fireboxes for heating by about 66 per cent. Heat that would have gone out the flue was trapped in its walls for radiation.

Manufacturers say the popularity of the woodburning stove is part fad and part an economy measure in a time of high-priced energy. Stovemakers say they can't keep up with the orders and many smaller manufacturers are entering market for the first time to take up the slack. Two are in this Southern Illinois town.

Rosech Enamel and Manufacturing decided to cash in on the craze this year. Michael Oesterle, 29, vice president and national sales manager, says, "It's a fad thing. It's functional but the main interest is that it is a fad. It just blossomed so quickly. It's people who are looking for heat and want something decorative.

"The long-range forecasts are that this isn't just an overnight thing," he says. "Most of us in the fireplace business think that this is going to last at least another four or five years."

By January, Rosech hopes to have produced 2,500 units and would have made more except for production bugs and steel shortages. "We'll be making a lot more," Oesterle says.

Most 20th century versions of the stove are made of steel and enamel and many need only a stovepipe — no fireplace chimney — for installation.

At the Empire Stove Co., Adrian Bauer, president, says, "It's good business. There's no doubt about that. It was born out of necessity because of the energy crisis. I think a lot of people are getting into it." His firm made nothing but gas appliances before, but in the first six months of 1974 turned out 8,000 Franklins and could have made at least 3,000 more if it could have found the steel.

Biggest buyers, Oesterle says, are people in the market for functional but decorative heating equipment, apartment constructors, and people with home-improvement projects like room additions.

Stuff-Knutson nuptial ceremony

MR. AND MRS. D. STEVEN KNUTSON

GRAND DETOUR — St. Peter's Chapel was the setting for the Oct. 5 marriage of Miss Kathy Stuff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max W. Stuff, Polo, to D. Steven Knutson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Knutson, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The wedding was performed at 3 p.m. by the Rev. Lowell D. Allen, pastor of the Rock Falls United Methodist Church, and organ music was provided by Mrs. Pauline Grant, Polo.

Decorations for the ceremony included twin altar arrangements of chrysanthemums and daisies in autumn colors, and bows of gold satin were attached to the sanctuary pews.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of white cotton eyelet worn by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. George Hammer, at her wedding in 1910. Insertions of lace accented the gown's floor-length skirt and molded bodice, which featured a bateau neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The bride designed and made her veil of illusion and eyelet lace, and as she was escorted to the altar by her father she carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of autumn daisy pompons and baby's breath.

Miss Debra Faley, Iowa City, Iowa, attended the bride as maid of honor, and Mrs. Gary Knutson, Spencer, Iowa, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor. They were attired in identical full-length gowns of lavender gingham styled with oval necklines and puffed sleeves, and fall flowers filled the baskets they carried.

Gary Knutson, Spencer, was his brother's best man; Steven Reints, Davenport, Iowa, acted as groomsmen, and ushering was done by Lonnie Coltrain, Ottumwa, Iowa, and Douglas Viegan, Davenport.

The service was followed by a reception and buffet luncheon in the Nachusa House Trail Room, Dixon, when hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Kness, Polo. Autumn flowers arranged in baskets decorated the reception tables, and a tiered wedding cake was served by Miss Carol Christensen and Miss Ann Gifford, Iowa City. Mrs. James Buchanan, Polo, presided at the buffet table and coffee service, and punch was poured by Mrs. Lonnie Coltrain, Ottumwa. Guests were registered by Mrs. Paul Bomberger, Polo, and in charge of the gift table were Miss Marigail Jury and Miss Nancy Vetter, Iowa City.

A 1967 graduate of Polo Community High School, the bride received a degree in 1971 from the school of medical technology at the University of Iowa, where she was a member of Alpha Xi Delta Sorority and the university Scottish Highlanders Bagpipe Band. Prior to her marriage she was employed by the University of Iowa Hospitals in Iowa City.

Mr. Knutson, a graduate of Fort Dodge High School, earned a degree in 1973 at the University of Iowa College of Pharmacy. A member of Kappa Psi fraternity, he was associated with the Schlegel Drug Stores in Davenport, and he is now employed by SuperRx Drugs in Peoria, where Mrs. Knutson is an employee of Proctor Community Hospital.

Since their return from a Wisconsin wedding trip, the newlyweds have been residing at 5405 Humboldt St., Peoria Heights.

Members of the Phidian Art Club met Tuesday afternoon in Loveland Community House when Mr. and Mrs. David Ames Jr., presented a program on "Designs of Today."

Slides depicting various types of furniture, ways to arrange furniture and new designs and colors illustrated the program. The speakers stated that color creates the mood being sought whether it is elegance, quietness, sophistication or boldness. Wall treatment and fabrics also assist in creating a feeling of continuity.

Color choices are endless, and may be selected in neutral monochromatic tones or bold contrasting shades. Color schemes can make space seem larger or smaller, and printed fabrics are often combined with plaids or stripes. There is no "right" combination, and decorating depends on personal choice and the reflection of a family's own personality and lifestyle.

Walls murals and wallpaper may be used effectively in a room as a focal point or merely to accent a given area. Rooms

St. Margaret's Guild meeting

St. Luke's Episcopal Church St. Margaret's Guild met recently in the church Eells Room when co-hostesses were Mrs. George Covert and Mrs. Carmen Utley.

During a business session, which opened with the Lord's Prayer and the Prayer of St. Margaret, the president, Mrs. Kenneth Nelson, announced that plans for the annual Christmas bazaar and luncheon to be held in the church Dec. 7, were made at a recent meeting for all women of the church.

Reports were given on guild projects, and members approved a plan to purchase needed equipment for the church kitchen.

Mrs. A. H. Fraza Jr., presided at the refreshment table arranged by the hostesses for a social hour.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old high school senior who needs an answer. I hope you will print the advice because there is no way I can risk getting a letter with such information in the mail. My mother would surely open it and all hell would break loose.

My steady and I have been going together for 14 months. We started to have sex three months ago. Please don't tell me to stop because we tried to three times and it's impossible. We even made promises to each other and took an oath on the Bible. It didn't help.

What I need to know is this: When is the safest time for me to have intercourse because I sure don't want to get pregnant. I hope you won't suggest Planned Parenthood or anything that has to do with birth control. It is against my religion. Also, my boy friend thinks (and I agree) that any artificial methods would cheapen the beautiful love we have for each other. Please, Ann, try to understand and help us. — Very Anonymous

Dear V.A.: What you are already doing is against your religion, Dummy. I wish you both lots of luck if you continue to play Vatican Roulette because you're certainly going to need it. The rhythm system is the least safe way to prevent pregnancy. (In fact, at least 15 per cent of the time it doesn't work.)

The system has to be worked out with a professional, according to each woman's cycle. The problem lies in the fact that most women's cycles are somewhat irregular. If a woman miscalculates by even one day she has a new name. It is "Mother." My advice is to go to Planned Parenthood or your family doctor and not take any more foolish chances.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother had a beautiful gold bracelet. Since I was the only daughter, it was natural for her to promise it to me. Whenever she wore that bracelet, she mentioned that one day it would be mine.

A few weeks ago Mother passed away. The gold bracelet was not with the rest of her things when the family gathered to divide her few meaningful possessions. No one seemed to know anything about it.

Last week I learned my brother had given the bracelet to his 13-year-old daughter. That brat never gave two hoots for her grandmother. She was a rude and disrespectful child. Today when I saw her wearing the lovely bracelet, my blood began to boil. What should I do?

—Out Dear O.: Tell your brother the bracelet was promised to you and you'd like to have it. Too bad your mother didn't put the promise in writing. She could have prevented what is sure to be a great deal of unpleasantness.

Dear Ann: I know you aren't a doctor but you have good connections. Here's the problem. When I get tense I perspire profusely, especially my hands. It's a very embarrassing situation. I hope you can help me.

barrassing when I'm in a group and have to shake hands, especially in a receiving line. I wore cotton gloves once and felt very out-of-place because no other woman had gloves on.

Three doctors have given me medication but nothing works. I would bless you forever if you could suggest something. — Wringing Wet

Dear Wet: Your problem is not uncommon. It is called hyperhidrosis. Some drugs give relief but the side effects may cause problems. If you've seen three doctors I suggest you see one more, a dermatologist. If he is persistent he may hit on the drug or combination of drugs that will solve your problem without creating new ones.

Opening lead—10 ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

No series of articles on obligatory falsecard plays would be complete without today's hand. In one form or another, this hand has been appearing in bridge columns for 50 years or more.

South wins the spade opening and leads a club. He is not going to make his slam if East holds all four missing clubs, but West follows and now the slam is cold.

A happy-go-lucky South would rise with the king of clubs on the theory that queens always dropped; a slightly more careful South would play dummy's jack to be sure of his contract against any 3-1 or 2-2 break and to make seven if West had started with three to the queen. A very careful South would play low from dummy. This would give up any play for seven but would insure success of the slam against the presence of all four cards in the West hand.

So, you are West. You know South is a careful player. You know that if you play the eight, nine or 10 he will duck in dummy and pick up the suit the next time around. You play your queen.

South should still play low, but will he? Thirty points is 30 points and he just may play the ace or king and wind up in the ash can. 18

Miss Nelson, Willard Asbury exchange vows in Compton

COMPTON — Miss Rebecca Kay Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Nelson, Compton, and Willard Lee Asbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Asbury, Kingsport, Tenn., exchanged marriage vows at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, Compton.

The Rev. Jerrold Elling, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman, and the nuptial organist was Mrs. Minnie Schlesinger, Mendota. Bouquets of white flowers decorated the church altar, which was flanked by lighted tapers in candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white satin crepe overlaid with embroidered organza. The gown, fashioned by the bride's mother, was styled with an empire bodice featuring a satin wedding-ring collar and full sleeves. A bandeau of white flowers held her elbow-length illusion veil, and the bouquet she carried combined white daisies, yellow and turquoise carnations accented by white satin streamers.

The bride's matron of honor, Mrs. June Bohannon, wore a full-length gown of aqua crepe designed with an A-line skirt, and a short-sleeved empire bodice trimmed with floral lace. Her headdress was an aqua veil attached to a bandeau of flowers, and she carried a white basket filled with white daisies, yellow and turquoise carnations.

A long frock of white batiste imprinted with yellow flowers was worn by the ceremonial flower girl, Miss Tonya Beth Cade, and she also carried white daisies, yellow and turquoise carnations in a white basket.

Mr. Asbury's best man was Frank J. Sandoval, Rochelle, and wedding guests were ushered by Gary L. Leininger and Gerald Bunker, Rochelle.

Yellow and aqua streamers decorated the tables arranged for a reception held in the Compton Sportsman's Club following the ceremony when

MR. AND MRS. WILLARD L. ASBURY

100 guests were registered. The reception table was centered by a three-tiered white, aqua and yellow wedding cake trimmed with white daisies.

Both the bride and bridegroom are employees of Caron International in Rochelle, where they are residing at 121½ S. 11th St.

Busing issue hurting incumbent in Colorado race

DENVER (AP) — Hostility toward court-ordered busing is the main force behind a serious Republican challenge to Rep. Pat Schroeder, Colorado's first woman member of Congress.

Frank Southworth, 48, a real estate salesman, is Mrs. Schroeder's Republican opponent. He complains the Democratic congresswoman has failed to strenuously oppose a federal order requiring cross-town busing to desegregate the city's schools.

Mrs. Schroeder, 34, says she's trying not to inflame passions over the issue. She adds that "Southworth thinks it's a magic formula for winning."

Mrs. Schroeder, a lawyer, was elected to her first term from the 1st District two years ago. Generally, she has pleased the liberals, environmentalists and minority residents of the district, which encompasses the city and county of Denver.

But Southworth, a conservative, says Mrs. Schroeder has allied herself with a "radical liberal" fringe. "I think the over-all issue is the lack of representation by the incumbent congresswoman," Southworth says. "The busing issue focuses attention on that."

Southworth, a former president of the Denver Board of Education and currently a state representative, also says Denver voters do not agree with her frequent opposition to military spending for research and development.

Southworth, who wears Colorado and American flag pins on his lapel, is worried that the Watergate scandal may lead many moderate and Republican voters to stay home election day. He says Watergate had "a devastating impact on the morale of this country."

Antibusing sentiment ran high in Denver last winter and a school boycott was successful briefly while the desegregation plan was being appealed in the courts. When the federal court order went into effect last month, there was little trouble. A citizens' organization tried to call a student boycott this fall, but the effort fizzled.

"This isn't Boston and it isn't Birmingham," Mrs. Schroeder says. "Nobody likes busing and no one is going to stand up and defend the ride on the bus as an educational experience. But on the other hand they're not just going to be knee jerk demagogues."

The latest newspaper-sponsored poll shows Mrs. Schroeder ahead by 11 percentage points among all voters, with about 20 per cent undecided.

"I think what's wrong with busing is that we've put the courts in a position where they should never be—they're fashioning a remedy. And they don't do that in any other area," Mrs. Schroeder says.

Under the federal court plan, 9,469 students are being bused this year who weren't bused last year. School administration officials say 24,786 students are now being bused in the Denver public school system.

Mrs. Schroeder favors a bill requiring state school boards to work out detailed statewide plans to desegregate schools. She says such plans would eliminate the need for court-ordered busing.

Mrs. Schroeder adds that the federal court had no choice except to desegregate via busing because the city failed to desegregate on its own and failed to improve core-city schools.

The slim, soft-spoken representative says Southworth is ignoring more important issues such as inflation.

"I have felt a great obligation not to engage in a hissing match with him because if we stand there and hiss at each other we only serve as a focal point to do what's happening in Boston," she says. Boston has been plagued by violent disturbances in the wake of court-ordered busing in public schools this fall.

She says a passionate debate on busing would "set the tone in this community so people will think it's okay to go a little step further."

Mrs. Schroeder has raised $60,000 so far and spent $30,000. She plans to spend an additional $50,000 by the end of the campaign.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-671: Father Paul, aged 42, does a splendid job of counseling in his large parish. "Dr. Crane," he said during our luncheon, "I occasionally deal with couples who have been married 20 years or more. 'And the wives often tell me their marriages have become increasingly platonic, due to an old notion of their husbands. 'Which is the belief that there is only a fixed amount of sexual fluids in the male. 'So when the final amount is exhausted, the men will be permanently impotent. 'Thus, those husbands excuse their lack of affection as being an attempt on their part to conserve their erotic supply. 'Is such an idea medically justified?'"

Church Clinics
In their splendid "Marriage Clinics" Father Paul and thousands of other talented clergy-men function as unofficial psychiatrists.

Which is excellent, for Dr. Karl Menninger said that psychiatry is really a method, instead of a group of M.D. specialists, and thus should be available to all intelligent folks!

There would also be very little need for the M.D. psychiatrists if everybody was active in a local church!

Marriage counselors, like Father Paul, also save the taxpayers millions of dollars. How?

By reducing the legal loan on our judges and courtrooms, bailiffs, court stenographers and other overhead charges that raise our taxes.

Imagine, too, the emotional insecurity of the 13,000,000 kids who are thus half orphans! In answer to Father Paul's query, we medics can assure you that it is fallacious to think there is only a fixed amount of erotic secretions implanted at birth.

Instead, glands actually thrive by regular use, as is likewise true of muscles.

A young cow doesn't secrete as much milk with her first calf as with the third or fourth. Why?

Because the heavy nursing by intervening calves causes the milk producing cells to increase in both number as well as size!

Same is true of a young wife who may not have half enough breast milk for her first baby, but may have ample for later infants.

"Hyperplasia" is the medical term for the multiplication of milk cells, and "hypertrophy" refers to the greater size thereof that results from frequent use.

Even the acid cells of the stomach thus produce more gastric juice in the glutton so the more he gorges, the larger appetite is created.

Remember, it's the diffident or finicky eater who has little appetite, for the glutton at noon is the first to sit down at a Thanksgiving banquet that same night!

A man thus does not have a fixed amount of seminal fluid, but secretes more as the need arises.

Regular marital relations also seem to insure longer sexual vigor and possibly reduce the incidence of prostate trouble.

For a sudden weaning of her baby will make a young mother's breasts enlarge painfully and "cake."

A similar condition often occurs in husbands whose wives suddenly die and thus stop the male's prostatic function.

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

$100,000 suit over 1973 collision

OREGON—Injuries received in a two-car crash in January 1973 have resulted in the filing of a $100,000 damages suit here by Robert Pfeiffer.

Named as defendant in the suit was Russell Mathias.

Pfeiffer, a passenger in a car driven by Richard Rohde, reportedly suffered a fractured rib and hand and shoulder injuries in the crash which occurred on Ill. 26. Rohde was traveling north on the highway when the Mathias auto crossed the center line and slammed into the Rohde auto, the suit claimed.

Mathias was accused of negligent driving in the suit for carelessly operating his car on the opposite side of the road.

The suit claims Pfeiffer has been unable to continue his work as a bricklayer due to his injuries.

ASHTON—A resignation was accepted and two appointments were made by the Ashton School board at a special adjourned meeting Thursday night.

The board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Ray Forney as the school board secretary and bookkeeper. Mrs. Forney resigned to devote her full time as a secretary-bookkeeper for the Forney Trucking Company.

Mrs. Edward Farver, former Ashton High School secretary, was appointed by the board to replace Mrs. Forney. Mrs. Farver will receive a salary of $6,059 per year.

The board then appointed Mrs. Robert Cicciarelli as high school secretary at an annual salary of $4,316.

Scott

Scott contended the Democratic members of the board had "gutted the legislative intent of the law."

"On Wednesday, the court agreed with us," Scott reported.

He also referred to a court decision which upheld his opinion regarding whether the personal property assessment applied to individuals.

Scott conceded his opinions are not binding and are not law and cannot be guaranteed to be perfect.

He offered the information an opinion will not be given where a law case is pending or on a subject on which there is legislative debate.

Talking now as the top elected Republican in the state, Scott declared it is crucial to maintain the GOP majorities in the legislature and that the 37th District is crucial in accomplishing that.

He pointed to the 1964 legislature as a lopsided partisan majority and observed it was that session which passed the race track bills which cost $5.5 million and set up the scandals which brought down Federal Judge Otto Kerner, who is a former governor, and his financial adviser Theodore Isaacs.

It was the activity of this session of the General Assembly which created the possibility for Paul Powell to skim of the fortune he left.

There was no legislative check and balance, Scott asserted.

He revealed he has filed suits to recover $1.5 million in funds Powell took from the state's taxpayers.

State Sen. David Shapiro, R-Amboy, sat in on the press conference and, after talking with Scott, reporters asked him about taking sales tax off food and drugs.

Shapiro replied the Democrats' call for taking sales tax off prescription drugs is a "farce," because the tax now is in the amount paid for the drugs and is not added on and he surmised the druggists would not reduce the price.

He said the pharmacies pay the tax without collecting it separately from consumers and this is the tax they pay for the privilege of holding a state license to dispense drugs.

The senator said he favors the GOP plan to reduce by a half-cent the sales tax paid on any item.

He said this would cost the state $160 million and observed since Republicans first proposed this, state revenues have increased by more than $160,000,000, "so it would not really cost the state anything."

He half-jokingly told reporters, "If the governor really wants to get a new idea about reducing sales tax, he ought to talk to his lieutenant governor (Neil Hartigan), because he has a pretty good plan for reducing sales taxes."

"But I don't think he talks to him very often these days."

Stouffer said plans are being made to hold demonstrations for the public so that voters may have an opportunity to learn about operation prior to the election day. The times of the demonstrations will be announced.

35 states told of cuts in welfare grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-five states and the District of Columbia have been told they will receive $43.5 million less in federal funds than they had requested to pay welfare recipients during the last half of this year.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Thursday it was reducing its matching grants by $61.7 million for the remainder of the year to prod states into weeding out ineligible welfare families and eliminating overpayments.

States had estimated they could save $18.2 million through their efforts, HEW told them, in effect, that they were expected to better that, by $43.5 million.

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger called the reductions "advance downward adjustments."

James S. Dwight, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said the new get-tough welfare program had saved state and federal million the state estimated it would save.

Illinois' request was chopped $6.5 million and California's $5.6 million.

Other cuts were: Alabama $176,000, Arizona $148,000, Arkansas $13,000, Colorado $208,000, Connecticut $416,000, Delaware $26,000, District

Two held after big manhunt

WOODSTOCK, Ill. (AP)—Two men arrested after a 24-hour manhunt in two states have been charged with armed robbery and may face additional charges in Wisconsin, authorities said.

Martin C. Watson, 21, of Chicago, and Gary Karr, 26, of Lyons, were charged by McHenry authorities with robbing a liquor store. Bond was set for each at $100,000.

The arrests came Thursday after a two-day spree by two men, which included a liquor store robbery in Harvard, a food store robbery in Darien, Wis., and a complaint by two Janesville, Wis., girls that they had been accosted, raped and later freed.

The two men were chased across Wisconsin and into Illinois during a high-speed pursuit by Walworth County, Wis., authorities. Across the state line, they were pursued by McHenry authorities near Wonder Lake after a stolen car had been abandoned, authorities said.

Watson was arrested around noon Thursday about 10 miles north of Woodstock in McHenry County.

Karr was arrested about three hours later at his apartment in Lyons, a suburb southwest of Chicago, by local police acting on an anonymous telephone tip. Both arrests were made without incident and no weapons were found, authorities said.

More than 100 policemen from Illinois and Wisconsin took part in the manhunt Thursday, making door-to-door inquiries in the area where the two men fled after abandoning the car near Wonder Lake.

Watson was arrested after he ran from a garage when the owner opened the door.

Warm applause for Mills

By The Associated Press
Rep. Wilbur D. Mills elicited laughter and warm applause from Little Rock Jaycees in his first public appearance since the Tidal Basin incident when he advised: "Don't go out with foreigners who drink champagne."

The Arkansas Democrat's car, in which he was a passenger, was stopped by park police in Washington, D.C., for speeding and operating without headlights in the early hours of Oct. 7.

Former stripper Annabel Battistella, an Argentinian who was also a passenger in the car, jumped into the Tidal Basin and was pulled from the water by officers who said both she and Mills appeared to be intoxicated.

"I did something I shouldn't have done—I drank some champagne when I knew it went to my head right quickly. And it did," Mills told the Jaycees in a campaign appearance in Little Rock on Thursday.

"Now I've been embarrassed beyond words about this experience, as I've said. I've apologized publicly on several occasions for what happened. I apologize again tonight for what happened."

"As I say, I was wrong in ever taking one drink of champagne because I learned years ago that I couldn't drink it, and I have learned in more recent years that you can't drink anything else and do very much."

The 65-year-old chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee is seeking his 19th term in the general election next month. His opponent is Republican Judy Petty, a 30-year-old divorcee who has said she would not make the Tidal Basin incident a campaign issue.

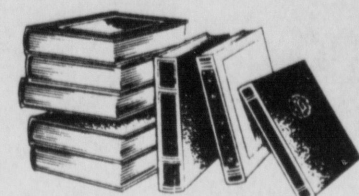

During his Jaycees address, Mills looked often toward his wife, Polly, who was seated in the audience. She was not with her husband on Oct. 7.

"There is no difference between us. After you've been married as long as we have, you get so used to one person that no one else can come between you," Mills said in denying suggestions that he was romantically involved with the 38-year-old Mrs. Battistella.

Win decisive game A's are champs

OAKLAND (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers brought out the best in the Oakland A's. As it turned out, the best was good enough to win the 1974 World Series.

"They needed a little humility," said Sal Bando, and the A's gave it to them by whipping the Dodgers 3-2 Thursday night to win their third straight world title, this one in five uneasy games.

The season ended officially when Oakland relief star Rollie Fingers collared pinch-hitter Von Joshua's bleeding grounder and hopped in joy as he threw out the runner.

Actually, the Dodgers were dead but didn't know it when they popped off against the A's before this bizarre Series started.

They called the A's doubtful champions, even though they had won two straight baseball titles.

"After they beat Pittsburgh in the (National League) playoffs, the Dodgers said they weren't impressed by us," said Joe Rudi, who hit the winning home run Thursday night. "Well, they have all winter to think about it."

Reggie Jackson, the most emotional of all the dynamic A's, wouldn't gloat over the obviously sweet victory. But you got some idea how he felt when he announced: "We're the champs ... I don't have to say anything more."

What the Dodgers learned from the 1974 World Series is that you don't give the A's a break and expect to get away with it.

In the first game at Los Angeles, the Dodgers outthit the A's 11-6, but the A's outscored the Dodgers 3-2. Jackson homered for the A's, and they got their winning runs on a squeeze bunt by Bert Campaneris and an error by Dodger third baseman Ron Cey. Fingers throttled the Dodgers with some great relief pitching before 25-game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter came in to get the last out.

Another 3-2 score resulted in the second game at Los Angeles, but this time the Dodgers were the winners. Joe Ferguson hit a two-run homer for the National League champions and strongman Mike Marshall snuffed out a ninth-inning Oakland rally.

After the A's scored two runs on Joe Rudi's base hit in the ninth inning, sprinter Herb Washington ran for Rudi but was picked off first base by Marshall in the most embarrassing play of the Series for Oakland.

It was a big mistake, Washington admitted, but the last one for the world champions. Back in the comfort of their own ballpark, the A's took a typical 3-2 decision in game No. 3. The A's scored two unearned runs after Ferguson, moved from right field to catcher, fumbled Jackson's 15-foot bouncer in front of the plate. Bill Buckner and Willie Crawford hit home runs for the Dodgers, but they came too late.

The omnipresent Fingers saved the victory for Hunter. As you might expect, the A's were outthit by the Dodgers 7-5 but Oakland still found a way to win.

Pitcher Ken Holtzman, who hits as well as he pitches in World Series play, unloaded a home run in Oakland's 5-2 victory in game No. 4.

Jim Holt, hitless in 25 pinch-hitting appearances during the regular season, delivered a two-run single to key a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. The tireless Finloners bailed out an Oakland starter once more.

That set the stage for Thursday night. Movie star Rock Hudson threw out the first ball — and the A's picked up the same, tired script.

"We never win them easily," said Oakland second baseman Dick Green, the defensive star of the Series.

Vida Blue, still looking for his first World Series victory, was given an early lead but couldn't hold it. A Dodger error set up Sal Bando's sacrifice fly in the first inning, then Ray Fosse hit a mistake pitch from Dodger ace Don Sutton into the left field seats for a 2-0 Oakland lead.

The A's celebrate

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's, celebrating another baseball world championship today, beat a Los Angeles Dodgers club they considered "tense and nervous."

The A's remember the feeling well.

"In 1971, we made the playoffs for the first time and Baltimore beat us in three straight. Since then, we've played up to our ability," team captain Sal Bando said after Thursday night's 3-2 victory which ended the World Series.

The three-time world champions needed only five games to finish off the Dodgers, although they batted a meager .211 as a team and won three of their games by 3-2 scores. The A's have taken nine one-run decisions in three World Series.

Los Angeles was the pre-Series favorite and when the Dodgers fell behind 2-1 after the third game, outfielder Bill Buckner said of the A's: "I think if we played them 162 times in a season, we'd win 100 times."

The newspaper quote, read in the A's clubhouse Wednesday night by owner Charles O. Finley, had its stinging effect but was nothing new.

"No one has been impressed by us," said Joe Rudi, whose seventh-inning homer off Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall provided the run that won the fifth game and the Series.

Reggie Jackson called the National League champion Dodgers "a good club, but I don't think they played up to their capabilities. They seemed tense and nervous."

At times — mostly the wrong times — the Dodgers were daring.

The quotable Buckner singled to lead off the eighth inning Thursday night and tried to reach third when the ball squirted past center fielder Bill North. He was out when Jackson, backing up North, fired the ball to second baseman Dick Green, who made a perfect relay throw to Bando.

"It wasn't a lucky play," said shortstop Bert Campaneris. "Reggie and Greenie were both in the right position and made great throws. That's why we're champions."

Reliever Rollie Fingers, with the help of the play, went on to shut out the Dodgers over the final two innings, the crowning touch that earned him the World Series' Most Valuable Player award.

Fingers was the Series' pitching star, Rudi and Campaneris led the A's batsmen with six hits apiece and Green stole the show in the field.

The 33-year-old second baseman, who probably will announce his retirement from baseball a third time this winter and then run up Finley's long-distance phone bill as he ponders a return, participated in a record six double plays against the Dodgers. At bat, he was 0-for-13.

"I'm just a fringe ballplayer on a great team," said Green, who soon will be collecting a $26,000 World Series check.

Jazz loses 89-74

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

There won't be any Mardi Gras type celebrations for the New Orleans Jazz yet.

The Jazz' debut in the National Basketball Association was not a rousing success. In fact, it was a dismal and disappointing 89-74 loss to the New York Knicks Thursday night when the NBA began its 29th season.

But, coaches Red Holzman of New York and Scotty Robertson of New Orleans agreed that the Jazz will soon be marching to a different tune.

"I think they will be a good ball club," offered Holzman. "They will be better when they get everybody back," he added, referring to absentees Neal Walk, John Block, Rick Roberson and Mel Counts, all sidelined with injuries.

"It's awful tough to compete when you're missing guys like that," the Knicks' coach continued. "But they have good guards, like (Pete) Maravich, (Stu) Lantz and (Jim) Barnett. They're not going to be your usual expansion team."

In Thursday night's other NBA opener, the Phoenix Suns trounced the Seattle SuperSonics 114-97.

Earl "The Pearl" Monroe, playing up to his descriptive nickname, scored 20 points to pace the Knicks, who are in a rebuilding program following the retirements of Dave DeBusschere, Willis Reed and Jerry Lucas plus the loss of Dean Meminger in the expansion draft. New York also was without captain Walt Frazier, sidelined with a virus.

Henry Bibby, filling in for Frazier, contributed 15 points, Phil Jackson scored 17 and John Gianelli had a career-high 18 rebounds for the Knicks. Maravich topped New Orleans with 15 points, far below the 27.7 average he had with Atlanta last season.

Meanwhile, Seattle Coach Bill Russell put all the blame on his own shoulders for the SuperSonics' loss to Phoenix.

"In the first half, I didn't do a very good job," admitted Russell. "I refer to substitutions and strategy. I was trying something on defense. We tried to shut (Charlie) Scott off in the center and left the wings open. And we gave up 58 points. It was too much to try to catch up."

Defeat galls the Dodgers

OAKLAND (AP) — The fact that the Oakland A's needed only five games to win the World Series proved particularly galling today to the defeated Los Angeles Dodgers.

"They beat us fair and square but I didn't think that we'd get beat in five," admitted first baseman Steve Garvey, the Dodgers' star of the Series.

"In this Series, we never did play the game of accomplished, solid ball that we played all year."

Oakland fans came in for sharp criticism from outfielders Bill Buckner and Jimmy Wynn. Before the A's seventh inning in Thursday night's clincher, they threatened to walk off the field when Buckner was nearly hit by a liquor bottle.

"I was hit in the back of the head by an apple earlier," he said. "I can't say much for those fans."

WALNUT — Ken Wilcoxon, Roger Johnson, Mike Munger and Tim Renner of Walnut have been selected to Babe Ruth Baseball's "Athletes of the Year" program for 1974, as announced today by Richard W. Case, president of Babe Ruth International, and Larry E. Wilcoxon, president and district director, Quint County Babe Ruth.

Nominations for "Athletes of the Year" were made earlier this summer by Babe Ruth league managers and presidents from across the nation. They were invited to nominate candidates with the best records of local achievement on their teams or in their leagues.

Criteria by which these local baseball players were nominated include the athlete's athletic ability, including statistics and overall performance, sportsmanship and personal leadership displayed during the current season. To be eligible for the program, a player must have been an active participant in an officially recognized Babe Ruth league during the 1974 season.

Wilcoxon, who played shortstop and pitched, has been a regular for three Babe Ruth seasons and a member of three divisional championship teams. The squad has a current winning streak of 29 consecutive league games.

Wilcoxon set a team record with a .568 batting average the past summer and also established team records of five triples and 67 total bases. He won seven and lost only one, with an 0.58 earned run average while pitching.

Munger ended the season with a .516 average while splitting his time between shortstop and the mound. He set a record by slamming 12 doubles and posted a 2.10 earned run average in winning six of seven mound decisions. Munger has now been on a trio of divisional championship squads.

Johnson, a catcher, also was on his

Johnson, a catcher, also was on his third title team and batted .222. Defense was his specialty, though, as Johnson was very instrumental in keeping opponent base runners from stealing.

Renner tied a club mark for fielding percentage with a perfect 1.000 at this centerfield spot. The fleet-footed Renner batted .326.

Sponsored by Babe Ruth International, "Athletes of the Year" is an annual honor roll paying tribute to the team players from the world's largest regulation baseball activity for young men. The purpose of the program is to promote and encourage the playing of amateur Babe Ruth baseball among young men between the ages of 13-18 by nationally recognizing each team's outstanding players of the current season.

The athletic achievements of each local honoree will be presented in the 1974 edition of Babe Ruth Baseball's Athletes of the Year Annual to be published in November. This respected chronicle of the youth baseball season will be on display in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

The National Advisory Board of the "Athletes of the Year" program is composed of prominent baseball personalities, including Mrs. Babe Ruth; Mrs. Marcus Bonacci, wife of founder, Babe Ruth Baseball; Ford Frick, former baseball commissioner; Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, Baseball Hall of Fame member; Elston Howard, coach, New York Yankees; Danny Litwhiler, coach, Michigan State University; Mickey Lolich, Detroit Tigers; Lawrence T. HIGHLIGHTS

We almost gave up trying to rate the top twenty college teams in the nation this week. It seemed a better idea would be just to throw all the names in a hat and draw them out one by one. However, there are still five powers that have escaped the virus of "upsetitis" that is running wild among football teams all over the country.

Ohio State took over as our No. 1 team replacing Oklahoma. The Sooners almost stumbled over Texas and slipped to second. Michigan remained number three while Alabama, still quaking after the escape over Florida State, is No. 4. Auburn really moved into high gear and took over the fifth spot in our elite group.

Looking at some traditional games this week, Arkansas catches Texas after a Saturday that saw them both take their lumps. The Longhorns gave Oklahoma a long afternoon and Arkansas ran into a Baylor team that gets tougher each week. The Razorbacks have taken successive whippings from Texas the past two years, so there's no question here about motivation! We think Arkansas will hand Texas its third loss in four weeks ... the difference, 4 points.

The Wolfpack of North Carolina State manages to stay undefeated, just squeaking through enough to win. However, these squeaks don't help them to a strong national ranking. They might just get their come-uppance Saturday as rival North Carolina enters with upset fever much in mind. With powerful Maryland just around the corner, State might possibly get farred and Heeled. In a high-scoring and close game, we'll pick the Tarheels by just three points.

Back in the Midlands, Missouri and Oklahoma State take aim at one another. The Tigers of Mizzou have either had a hot hand or a cool hand so far this season, and the Cowboys made news earlier with their upset of Arkansas. Missouri has upset both Arizona State and Nebraska, but died against Wisconsin. We're picking State by 3.

Thanks to a polished crystal ball that actually grinned two Saturdays ago, ye olde average climbed a big notch to .749. Totals: 667 ok, 223 uh-ahs, and 25 ties.

Elsewhere around the country, Oklahoma takes on Colorado to start its conference season. The Buffs upset Wisconsin earlier, but just won't be able to stay with the Sooners. Oklahoma by 25 points. Auburn faces no easy task against Georgia Tech as the Yellow Jackets are only 17 point underdogs.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20

NEW YORK JETS ... 21
First AFC East meeting to determine cellar-dweller. Colts get company in basement with a win. ... Jets anxious to stay "anti-social." Joe Namath and New York favored by 14.

OAKLAND ... 17
One of these days ... and it might be Sunday — Lions will get up on their hind legs, growl more than usual, and bite Vikes! Minnesota barely eked out 7-6 win few weeks ago.

PITTSBURGH ... 24
If Steeler QB Joe Gilliam's air circus relay to center ring Browns could be in deep trouble. AFC Central match-up with Pittsburgh trying to keep up with Bengals.

MINNESOTA ... 16
One of these days ... and it might be Sunday — Lions will get up on their hind legs, growl more than usual, and bite Vikes! Minnesota barely eked out 7-6 win few weeks ago.

MIAMI ... 21
Might be difficult for Dolphins to psych themselves to soon after Redskins. Chiefs have big task to keep Raiders in sight. Miami handkerchiefs should wave happily.

NEW ENGLAND ... 27
No longer paties for Miami in AFC East. Patriots and Bills are at top of division and blowing opposition apart. We think Pats will win first confrontation of ex-patriates.

ATLANTA ... 17
Falcons have finally gotten taste of winning in '74, but not same club yet that scared Rams in '73. Saints win first meeting, helped by Atlanta fumbles, 14-13. Falcons!

BALTIMORE ... 7
First AFC East meeting to determine cellar-dweller. Colts get company in basement with a win. ... Jets anxious to stay "anti-social." Joe Namath and New York favored by 14.

CINCINNATI ... 23
No doubt one of best games of day ... both offensive powerhouses. Might be AFC championship preview. Two "Kenneth" QBs: Anderson and Stabler. Odds favor Raiders.

CLEVELAND ... 14
If Steeler QB Joe Gilliam's air circus relay to center ring Browns could be in deep trouble. AFC Central match-up with Pittsburgh trying to keep up with Bengals.

DETROIT ... 13
One of these days ... and it might be Sunday — Lions will get up on their hind legs, growl more than usual, and bite Vikes! Minnesota barely eked out 7-6 win few weeks ago.

KANSAS CITY ... 13
Might be difficult for Dolphins to psych themselves to soon after Redskins. Chiefs have big task to keep Raiders in sight. Miami handkerchiefs should wave happily.

BUFFALO ... 20
No longer paties for Miami in AFC East. Patriots and Bills are at top of division and blowing opposition apart. We think Pats will win first confrontation of ex-patriates.

NEW ORLEANS ... 10
Falcons have finally gotten taste of winning in '74, but not same club yet that scared Rams in '73. Saints win first meeting, helped by Atlanta fumbles, 14-13. Falcons!

WASHINGTON ... 20
Redskins edged Giants, 13-10, in season opener, and are favored for repeat performance. Skins surprised by Bengals and Cards. ... Giants dazzled Dallas.

DALLAS ... 20
Cowboys get butterflies in their spurs when Eagles are mentioned. Philly surprised after tracas with Cowboys. However, good defense continues. Oilers will tumble by 20.

ST. LOUIS ... 23
After 5 games, it's amazing to refer to Cards as NFC East leaders. Let down maybe after tracas with Cowboys. However, good defense continues. Oilers will tumble by 20.

DENVER ... 17
Broncos must start making their move to get back into division race. And don't count Chargers out ... yet. Good AFC West match-up with Denver favored by only four points.

SAN DIEGO ... 13
Broncos must start making their move to get back into division race. And don't count Chargers out ... yet. Good AFC West match-up with Denver favored by only four points.

LOS ANGELES ... 24
First of two meetings between these two NFC West rivals. Rams slapped 49ers down twice last fall ... should do same this year. 15-point spread for Los Angeles.

GREEN BAY ... 17
Monday nite featuring old NFC Central rivals. Both struggling to keep pace with Vikings. Home game for Bears ... opportunity for national TV to see QB Gary Huff.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 21

CHICAGO ... 23

GREEN BAY ... 17

Fretting from on forecasters' forehead replaced by slight smile after picking 10 of 13 two weeks ago. Record thru Monday, Oct. 7th, shows 36-15-1 for .686 average.

The housing pinch hurts you, too

Housing. Hard to find. Almost impossible for you to buy. Why?

Tight money — limited dollars available only at high interest rates — is the prime reason.

Tight money keeps housing from being built. Or sold. So, when you go to buy a home... or rent an apartment... or sell your home, that's tough on you.

You're not the only one hurt. Millions of others, too. In fact, there are a half million building trades workers out of jobs now. Suppliers, salesmen, manufacturers, the carpet and furniture makers — all hurt. When housing hurts, damage is done to the whole economy and, particularly, right here at home.

What is being done?

We've proposed a tax exemption of up to $1,000 of the interest earned at thrift institutions, such as savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks.

That would be a break for the small savers, yet make more money available for mortgage loans. Up to 300,000 new housing units. Carpenters, plumbers, laborers could go back to work again.

We've also urged Congress to pass the Home Purchase Assistance Act of 1974 which would make mortgage money available for the average family in times of extreme tight money such as we now are experiencing and at reasonable rates.

How can you help?

Tell your Senator that the Home Purchase Assistance Act of 1974 (S. 3979) should be approved immediately.

Tell your Representative that you favor the House bill which would exempt from income taxation the first $1,000 of interest earned in thrift institutions.

Tell your Congressman steps must be taken to ease the housing crisis.

What you do now may help you get the home you want tomorrow.

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— Can a person's body use the minerals contained in water? I have been told that these are inorganic minerals and that the body can use only organic minerals. Do these minerals collect in our bodies to help form gallstones and cause arthritis? Also, would it be beneficial to drink only distilled water?

DEAR READER— You have been listening to some dangerously ill-informed people. Do not take any health advice from that source.

You must have inorganic minerals for life. Sodium from salt, potassium and all of the elements essential to life are inorganic minerals. You have to have calcium for your bones and even the function of your heart and nerves. These inorganic minerals are exactly the same element whether the sodium, potassium, iron, copper or calcium comes from water, in vegetables, from an iron cooking pot or another source. Some people don't realize that an element is an element wherever it is found.

Your healthy body regulates these inorganic minerals so that you have the right amount of calcium, iron, sodium, potassium and other elements in your body. Even the amount of pure water in the body is regulated by the body itself. Having these necessary items in your diet or water in no way contributes to gallstones or arthritis in healthy people.

You do not need to drink distilled water for your health. Your city water, properly treated by the city to prevent bacteria in your water, is the safest of all water immediately available to you. If you drink bottled water, you must keep it relatively sterile or you will have to boil it to protect yourself from germs. Germs, not minerals, are the big problem here.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I am a married woman, 40 years old, an office worker in fairly good health. I have no varicose veins and am not overweight, however, I am getting a little heavy through the waistline. So, I purchased a 10-speed racer bicycle to ride the six miles home from work, in hopes that the exercise would keep me in shape.

I took a week to gradually work up to riding the six miles. But, after about 10 days many, many bruises appeared all over my legs, and particularly on the sides and back of my knees.

Have some of the tiny veins in my legs ruptured due to the strain? I'm worried. Could this cause me to develop varicose veins or harm me in some way?

With the many people taking up bicycling these days, I feel sure it would be of interest to many.

DEAR READER— If those little veins ruptured from your exercise, you already had a problem. Unless you bump or bruise the legs, exercise should not cause varicose veins or rupture of the small veins.

Exercising the legs actually pumps the blood up hill out of the veins in the legs and toward the heart. The contraction of the muscles around the deep veins in the legs actually milks the blood out of the legs. The truth then is that exercise of this nature should decrease the pressure in the veins and help prevent problems.

If you haven't heard about our major changes for '75 it's because we made 'em in '70!

Let's start with the snowmobile itself! It was a 1964 idea but we did it in 1954

(the first snowmobile manufactured in the U.S.). Do you think slide suspension is new? We had a set 20 years ago! We were also the first with a cleated track as we know it today.

What about free air engines, or hydraulic disk brakes?

We've had 'em for some time!

And we haven't stopped pioneering the snowmobile yet. We're still adding improvements and working on a lot more for the future!

We've made a few 1980 changes for '75.

Fun parks keep show biz alive

By DICK KLEINER

Los Angeles — (NEA) — Want to get into show business? Don't come to Los Angeles or go to New York. Go to Arlington, Tex., or Orlando, Fla., or a few other places like that, spots which are gigantic in recent show business history.

It sounds funny but it's true. Today the biggest employer of show business talent is the amusement park industry, especially those huge theme parks such as Disneyland, Walt Disney World and the various Six Flags parks.

Scattered across the nation, these frolicsome acres employ hundreds of young kids, singers and dancers mostly, who are getting their first shot at professional show business.

David Blackburn produces the shows for Six Flags which has large amusement parks in Texas, Georgia and Missouri, with smaller operations elsewhere in Texas and in California.

Among them all, Blackburn employs around 500 performers. He holds auditions every year and every year he personally auditions, he says, perhaps 5,000 youngsters.

He auditions generally around the city where he needs the talent — Dallas, Fort Worth, Atlanta, St. Louis — but when his staff has the time it goes further afield in search of fresh young faces and voices. Once, he went to Provo, Utah, which he remembers mostly because an Indian boy came in and danced with a snake. They didn't hire him.

Once performers are hired Blackburn puts them to work in shows at one or another of the parks. Generally, they are amateurs at first, but quickly become pros, although not what you'd call overpaid. They work for salaries of a bit more than $3 an hour.

Blackburn's counterpart with the Disney organization is Bob Janni, who produces all the shows and parades for Disneyland and Walt Disney World.

"The live entertainment business changed with the decline of nightclubs," Janni says. "Today it's a different ball game than it was five years ago. Today, the buying power of outdoor amusement parks is significant."

Janni says that he is currently running the only showroom in the country that is open every day of the year — the Top of the World room in the Contemporary Hotel at Walt Disney World in Florida.

Over the years, much new talent has been developed at the amusement parks. Janni is proud that the first professional engagement of the Osmond Brothers was at Disneyland some years back.

And Blackburn takes satisfaction in the emerging careers of some of his alumni — Cissy King and Ralna English, both now with The Lawrence Welk Show, and Betty Buckley, recently starring on Broadway in "Pippin," got their starts as youngsters in the Six Flags shows.

"John Denver worked at Six Flags Over Texas," Blackburn says, "but he wasn't in one of our shows — for some reason, he never auditioned as a singer, but worked as a gunfighter in the park."

Janni had 98 college students working in his parks last summer, in a program he ran in conjunction with California School of the Arts. They came from 37 different universities. It was, for virtually all of them, their first taste of professional show business.

Between the Disney and Six Flags operations, somewhere around one thousand youngsters get their first crack at show business entertaining.

Blackburn says many of them find that the dream comes nowhere near being realized.

They have to work too hard and they don't get the money to make them forget their weariness. It does, however, give the dreamers a chance to get the fantasy out of their systems.

'Acting' makes 13-year-old happy

What makes a 13-year-old boy happy? For Alfred Lutter, the answer is easy. "Acting," he said without hesitation. He is equally certain that acting will be his life's work.

Alfred co-stars with noted performer James Earl Jones in "The Cay." This "Bell System Family Theatre" drama special, based on the book by Theodore Taylor, will be colorcast on NBC Monday, 7-8 p.m.

In it, Alfred portrays a boy temporarily blinded when the ship he is on is torpedoed in the Caribbean by a Nazi submarine during World War II. Jones, as an aging seaman, rescues the boy and teaches him how to survive despite his blindness.

Portraying a blind person is one of the more difficult assignments for an actor and young Lutter admitted it took a lot of concentration. The articulate boy, who lives with his family in Ridgewood, N.J. said: "Our director, Patrick Garland, was a big help to me. He told me how to move, reminded me not to stare. It was difficult. I had to keep remembering not to look at anybody directly.

"I had to keep my eyes open (except when the wind blew sand around) and keep them in one attitude. I couldn't let my eyes wander. There is one point in the story when lizards move and scare Phillip, the boy I play. When I heard the noise of the lizards, I had to keep reminding myself not to run but to move my whole body in the general direction of the noise."

Most of the special was filmed on location at Grand Caye Isle, 14 miles off the coast of Belize (formerly British Honduras), opposite Belize City. Said Alfred: "The weather was hot and the sun was out every day, or most every day. It rained only at night. The humidity was very, very high."

When did the boy decide to become an actor? "It just sort of happened," he said. "There was no one thing which made me make up my mind. I'll finish schooling, including college, but acting is what I want to do," he said with firmness.

And acting is what he is doing steadily. He has completed his first movie role, in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," headlining Ellen Burstyn and Kris Kristofferson. And Alfred is set for a role in a new Woody Allen motion picture going into production in Paris.

Alfred's mother, Ruth, can't explain her son's decision to become an actor. He is the only member of the Lutter clan (which includes four boys and one girl) to have an interest in show business. She said: "I have no answers. He convinced my husband and me last year that he was seriously interested in acting. We would never stand in his way."

Sleeping Beauty in musical

"Sleeping Beauty," a musical special based on the stage production produced by the Prince Street Players, will be presented on channel 9 Sunday, from 7 to 8 p.m.

Starring Gisele MacKenzie as the wicked witch Villainy, the musical tells the famous story of the princess who pricks her finger on a golden spinning wheel and is cast by a spell to sleep for 100 years.

But this special is a wonderfully zany and marvelously musical re-telling of this classic story. Introduced are three good witches — Nosey, Dizzy, and Bossy — who are proprietors of an establishment that grants wishes. It is their wicked sister, Villainy, who casts spells and causes trouble.

In one of her more evil moments, Villainy has turned a prince into a tree, and it is rumored she was behind the theft of Dorothy's shoes in Oz and the poisoning of the apple which Snow White ate.

But Villainy meets her match in Time, a marvelously droll character played by R. G. Brown, who assists Nosey, Dizzy, and Bossy in unraveling all of the clues and bringing Villainy to justice. How they reverse one of Villainy's spells and cause her to pay the price is one of the comic highlights of the special.

"Sleeping Beauty," like the other Prince Street Players' specials, "Cinderella," "The Canterville Ghost," and "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere," is chockfull of songs and dances. There are 11 songs in the hour, including "I'm the Meanest Witch," "We Love the Work We Do," "I'm So Mad, Mad, Mad," "I'm the Most Unusual Tree," "I Finally Found A Friend," and the title song "Sleeping Beauty," composed by Portia Nelson, Jim Eiler, and Joanne Bargy. Buddy Schwab was choreographer.

The three sisters are played by Ceil Cabot, Carole Cook, and Carol Arthur. Benny Gatteys is Princess Melisande and James Carroll Jordan, the Prince. The King and Queen are played by Eric Brotherson and Jeanne Bates, while the role of Time is played by R. G. Brown.

Anglo-American advance on World at War series

November 1942 to June 1944, Winston Churchill calls Italy "the soft underbelly" of Hitler's Europe. But it isn't, as documented in "Tough Old Gut," the 13th chapter of the "World at War" series to be telecast Sunday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Channel 9.

"I can see Churchill now at his map with his pointer pointing out the soft belly of the Mediterranean and after we got there I often thought what a tough old gut it was, instead of the soft belly that he had led us to believe," says Gen. Mark Clark as he re-lives the Anglo-American advance from Sicily as the Big Three meet in this chapter of the powerful series narrated by Laurence Olivier.

Polynesian adventure from below water

Stanton Waterman, his wife and three children packed up and moved 6,500 miles to the South Pacific to fulfill a family dream. Waterman, a professional diver, explorer and photographer, explained: "We came to Polynesia to film the many forms of marine life sustained by a coral reef. There is a strange and beautiful world below the surface. I wanted my family to see it and apply what they have seen to the world around them. And it was also a chance for all of us to experience a new way of life."

For a full year Waterman, his wife, daughter and two sons lived in the Society Islands — Tahiti, Moorea, Bora Bora, Raiatea, Tahaa — sharing the life of the islanders. Their South Sea idyll is depicted in the National Geographic Society special, "Polynesian Adventure," to be presented on channel 9, Sunday, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Before their Polynesian adventure ended, the Princeton, New Jersey, family was well adapted to life on tropical islands.

Wistful author in the jaws of 'Jaws'

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
EDGARTOWN, Martha's Vineyard (NEA)—It's the sudden weight of the huge shark lying across the bow of the small fishing boat, not the sharp wind, that tilts the stern out of the water causing the deck to incline steeply.

Unable to stop himself, the fisherman slides on his back down the deck towards the shark. His foot touches the snout and the fish begins to thrash and twist, trying to close its jaws around it.

For several moments, the man struggles desperately. But the effort is too much for him. He screams, his face red with exertion, and then...

"Print," yells Steven Spielberg, the director, and the cameras are switched off. The men on the barge nearby stop maneuvering the mechanical shark.

And Robert Shaw, the English actor playing the fisherman, looks up for word from Spielberg who stands on an adjacent barge amidst a crew of 20 and a profusion of equipment.

"Beautiful, Robert," Spielberg calls. "Let's do it one more time. We've got to get the shark working more."

He turns to deal with the problem and Shaw, who has done the scene half a dozen times this morning in the choppy waters off Martha's Vineyard, lies back wearily on the cold deck of the fishing boat. He cups his hands behind his head and closes his eyes.

It's a bloody bore, this stop-and-go filmmaking. Especially when you've been at it for 17 weeks, instead of the scheduled six, as Universal Pictures has with its adaptation of Peter Benchley's bestselling novel, "Jaws."

And it's keeping Shaw from his writing. Although known primarily for his acting (he's currently on screen in "The Sting" in the role of the limping Irish mobster), Shaw is an equally skilled author and he covets the time to write.

"I've done too much work as an actor this year," he says. "I've made two films ('The Sting' and 'The Taking of Pelham One Two Three') and done one play before this ('The Dance of Death,' Off-Broadway).

"It's been two years since I began 'Flesh and Blood,' my sixth novel, and I've been away from it so long I feel guilty."

At 48, the father of nine, passionate athlete (the limp in "The Sting" was not a nice extra touch but rather a legacy of three torn ligaments from a vigorous handball game the Saturday before shooting); devoted drinker—"I love to drink but I worry about it because it gets harder to do well the older you get"—a man who's never able to sleep the night through, who reads five newspapers in addition to Time, Newsweek and New York magazine, Shaw admits he's "terribly introspective" and possessed of a "Celtic twilight" view of things.

"Flesh and Blood," for example, is set in an old age home in Manhattan. "There's a war somewhere," he explains, "and the old people decide to form a regiment and get their grandchildren out themselves. It's really about an old people's crusade."

"I've been reading Lord Moran's book," he continues. "He was Churchill's doctor. He didn't write about Churchill's last 10 years because Churchill simply sat like a vegetable in front of the fire and cried. It's a fact, you know, that old men cry more than old women. I don't know why. But that's all very relevant and I shall make use of it."

Civilisation series takes viewers to the Rome of the past

Narrator Kenneth Clark, who conceived and wrote the distinguished series "Civilisation," takes viewers to the Rome of the Counter-Reformation, the Rome of Michaelangelo and of Bernini, in Chapter 7, "Grandeur and Obedience," on Channel 9 Sunday, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Clark declares that Papal Rome, the Rome of Sixtus V, is the most grandiose piece of town planning ever attempted. He finds amazing that it was done only a generation after Rome had seemingly been completely humiliated by the 1527 sacking. Rome and the Church of Rome regained many of the territories they had lost and became once more a great spiritual force.

This film in a thousand images documents the lushness and luxury of early Baroque. The Rome of the 17th Century was both religious and sensual. The works of Titian, Rubens, and Bernini appeal to universal emotions. They became the acme of art. The essence of Baroque is the uniting of flesh and spirit, dogma and sensuality, obedience and freedom. This unity is evident in the great religious figures of that time: St. Ignatius, St. Theresa of Avila, and St. John of the Cross.

3,000 mile Amazon roadway studied

"Other People, Other Places" offers a look at the enormous task of building a 3,000 mile roadway through the Amazon basin of Brazil during "The Claiming of the Amazon," to be presented on Channel 9 Saturday, from 3 to 3:30 p.m.

Welk to feature musical families

Lawrence Welk will feature tunes made famous by other American musical families during his program on Channel 9 Sunday, from 9 to 10 p.m. There will be nostalgic melodies from Johnny Cash and June Carter, the Arthur Murrays, the Gershwins, the Carpenters, Mills Brothers, and Frank and Nancy Sinatra, as well as others.

"Bye, Bye, Love" (Everly Bros.) starts the program, followed by the Lombardos' "Raindrop Serenade" and Bobby and Cissy terpsing to "Whispering," saluting the Arthur Murrays and the Castles.

Johnny Cash's "If I Were A Carpenter" is offered by Guy and Ralna Hovis, Henry Cuesta's clarinet soars to the Ames Brothers' "Undecided," and Dick and Gail duet Frank and Nancy Sinatra's "Something Stupid." Norma Zimmer solos the King Sisters' "Imagination," the band offers a Gershwin medley, and Welk's Sextette offers Dotty and Art Todd's "Chanson d'Amour."

The Mills Brothers are doubly saluted with Ken Delo's "You Always Hurt the One You Love" and "Cab Driver" by the Welk quarter.

Ray Milland is happy to act his age

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Ray Milland glanced with disinterest at the champagne chilling in the silver bucket sent to his suite by the manager of a luxurious mid-Manhattan hotel.

"I hate champagne—in fact, I hardly drink at all," confided the man whose Academy Award-winning role in "The Lost Weekend" made him the international symbol of an alcoholic.

"It makes me throw up. 'But I smoke too much,' he added, searching for a lozenge to ease a throat irritated by a day of back-to-back interviews and television appearances on behalf of his just-published autobiography, "Wide-Eyed in Babylon."

A bit heavier, grayer, and a good deal balder than he appeared in some 200 movies, Milland retains the sophisticated charm that has kept him on the screen for more than 40 years.

And despite the fact that he is in his mid-60s he's still there, having made six pictures in five countries during the last 16 months.

"I don't have to worry about the youth syndrome any more," explains the 6-foot-2 actor who played a father in "Love Story" and a grandfather in his latest movie, "Gold," and who actually has a 2-year-old grandson.

"As you get older you don't have to strike any poses any more and you can just be yourself," he goes on. "My greatest worry when I was young was my head of jet black hair. The first thing in the morning I had to check and see did I sleep on it wrong so that it stood out like wire all over my head. Now I don't have any hair so I don't have to worry."

Though most of the hair may be gone, Milland still has one indelible reminder of his younger years—a tattoo that he acquired the summer he worked on a tramp steamer in the Mediterranean.

"That's one of my big regrets, but then I was only 15," he admits, rolling up the sleeve of his bright blue shirt to display a skull on his right arm, fading but still clearly visible.

The brief stint as a sailor was only one of the early careers of the former Reginald Turcott-Jones, who took his professional name from the mill lands of his native Wales.

As a member of the Queen's Household Cavalry for three years he took part in the colorful changing of the guards ceremonies. An expert horseman, he was also a crack marksman, which is how he got his start in the movies after he left the service.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: One of our instructors at Fort Hood recently stated that in his files is a column by the late Drew Pearson which says that Lucille Ball at one time was secretary of the Los Angeles chapter of the Communist party, while she was married to Desi Arnaz. The instructor is a sincere man, yet we have our doubts. Could you comment, please?— FOUR FORT HOOD GIs, Fort Hood, Tex.

This story keeps cropping up from time to time, even though Lucy has been given a clean bill of health, politically, by everybody. Back in the '50s, she joined the Communist party as a lark, with a bunch of other larkers. That's as far as it went, because Lucy was then and is now a nonpolitical person. She never held any office with the party, certainly not secretary of the L.A. "chapter." Pearson did write about her on a few occasions but I'm not certain whether or not he said anything about her holding office. Lucy's spokesman, Howard McClay, says, "That instructor must be some kind of kinko—I'm glad I'm not in his platoon."

DEAR DICK: Is Gilligan's Island going off? My friend said it was.— ADRIAN W., Mobile, Ala.

DEAR DICK: Why is Gilligan's Island being reruns?— MELISSA FORRESTER, Pendleton, Ore.

Kids, Gilligan's Island hasn't made a new episode in five years or so. You've been watching old shows, reruns, all that time. Some local stations may decide to drop it now so it may go off—but chances are it'll be back again, but it will always be reruns.

DEAR DICK: Will you please tell me the name of the girl who plays Laura on "Little House on the Prairie?" And where does she live?— E. ROONEY, Essex, Vt.

Melissa Gilbert is the young actress who plays that part. She was born and still lives in Los Angeles.

DEAR DICK: What is the name of the actor who played Al Capone's lieutenant, Frank Nitti, on The Untouchables?— CLAUDE S. MILLER, San Jose, Calif.

You're thinking of that fine character actor and heavy, Bruce Gordon.

DEAR DICK: Please tell me who played the leading lady opposite Tyrone Power in the first movie of "The Rains Came." Also, who played Jennifer Jones' father in "Duel in the Sun."— MRS. J. SPARKS, Etobicoke, Ont., Canada.

Myrna Loy was the lady with Power and Jennifer's daddy was Herbert Marshall.

The Great Barrier Reef examined

A few miles off the northeast coast of Australia, stretching for over a thousand miles along the coastline, is a vast natural sea wall of coral banks and cays. This is "The Great Barrier Reef," which will be examined during "Untamed World" on channel 9 Saturday, from 8 to 8:30 a.m.

In its waters are the greatest array of colorful and bizarre marine life to be found in any region of the world's oceans. It is a vast underwater biological construction unit where countless varieties of plants and animals die in a never-ending cycle.

Now, suddenly, the reef is dying — the crown of thorns starfish threatens to destroy a million years of natural construction.

Fleming elected Nursing Home Assoc. president

The Illinois Nursing Home Association at its Annual Convention in Champaign elected Michael Fleming, right, president. Fleming is the owner of Franklin Grove Nursing Center in Franklin Grove. He will take office Jan. 1, 1975. The Illinois Nursing Home Association is composed of over 275 facilities representing 20,000 health care beds in the state of Illinois. Handing over the gavel to Fleming was outgoing President George Gahr.

Availability of money boosts FLB service

Availability of money despite the tight money market — and at a realistic interest rate — is enabling the Federal Land Bank System to provide outstanding service to agriculture, Harold Jepson, manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Dixon, said last week.

Jepson was reporting to more than 600 stockholders and guests at the annual meeting in Polo. He said farmers are in urgent need of money to expand in order to meet the growing world-wide demand for food.

"They also require increasing amounts of money to combat effects on agriculture caused by continued inflation," said Jepson. "Growth in mechanization with a reduction in labor requires more money to operate a farm today. Tremendous increase in land values is pushing up the demand for funds, too."

Many factors combined to increase mortgage loans outstanding at a rapid rate. Recent growth of the FLBA of Dixon emphasizes dependence on this cooperative for finances. For the first seven months of this year, the FLBA of Dixon had 245 loans totaling $15,486,144. For the months of August and September, it made 51 loans totaling $2,113,900.

Optometric Association to hold conference

The Illinois Optometric Association's Annual Vision Scientific Conference will be presented at the Playboy Club, Lake Geneva, Wis., Oct. 21-23. The doctor of optometry attending from this area is Dr. George A. McGraham, Dixon.

Dr. Ernest Havilla, Illinois Optometric Association president, said this 67th annual conference will highlight a demonstration presentation on low vision advances, such as laser canes, sonar glasses and reading machines for the sightless. In addition, the conference program will present demonstrations of the latest contact lens and refractive techniques and a special mini-conference on child vision care.

The conference will also announce the details of the new statewide vision care program, which is a pre-paid eye insurance plan providing groups with examinations, lenses and frames. This new plan is sponsored by the Illinois Vision Services, Inc., a not-for-profit Illinois Corporation made up of almost 1,000 doctors of optometry.

The principal speaker at the keynote session will be Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett. Howlett will outline a new vision-safety program which will be presented jointly by the Illinois Optometric Association and the Secretary of State. The program will present vision-safety subjects throughout Illinois to high school driving classes by IOA member lectures, films and pamphlets. Havilla and Howlett said it is a first-time vision safety program in the United States.

Loewi acquires fourth exchange membership

H. W. Beeler, local manager of Loewi & Co., has been advised by William L. Liebman, president of Loewi & Co. Inc., that the firm has acquired its third seat on the New York Stock Exchange. Loewi & Co., which has local offices at 202 E. Fifth St., Sterling, joined the New York Stock Exchange in 1955, and acquired its second seat in 1970. Leonard Rizzi, who has represented Loewi on the floor of the American Stock Exchange for the past few years, will be the floor broker for this seat after the necessary regulatory processing has taken place. In the past 18 months, the firm has acquired memberships in the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade, and the Chicago Board Options Exchange, in addition to the acquisition of this New York Stock Exchange seat.

According to Liebman, "This action demonstrates a willingness on our part to make capital expenditures where necessary to provide better service to our clients. During the past 18 months, we have seen many firms retrench or go out of business and very few have expanded."

One new and one re-elected director join the board of the Federal Land Bank Association of Dixon following the annual meeting last week. With the directors are four staff members. From left, front: Harold Jepson, manager; Willard Simpson, re-elected director from Franklin Grove who has been president, and Lester Wichman, new director from Bailyville. Back row, Kenneth Holmes, Norman Horack and Morris Kessinger, associate managers.

Walter L. Kevern, District 2 planning engineer, was honored at Springfield recently for having attained 25 years of employment with the Illinois Department of Transportation. Kevern served in many capacities in the design, construction and planning of highways prior to his appointment as planning engineer in January 1962. He has been active in community affairs. Kevern is a graduate of the University of Illinois, a Registered Professional Engineer, and a member of the Illinois Association of Highway Engineers and Illinois Society of Professional Engineers. Kevern and his wife, Esther, live at 1122 Institute Blvd.

The FLBA of Dixon will do "substantially more business compared with 1973," said Norman Horack, associate manager who gave the financial report. He said last year it had 294 loans totaling $11,700,000.

Glenn E. Heitz, president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis which serves farmers in Illinois, Arkansas and Missouri, said he believes farmers are increasingly aware of the importance of using their credit. New loan programs, such as Rural Home and open end loan plans, add to the flexibility and availability of money for rural America, he said. Heitz was featured speaker at the annual meeting.

Heitz said the farmer-owned cooperative has been able to keep interest rates within a reasonable area—under nine per cent because of the scope of the FLB of St. Louis. The fact that the FLB of St. Louis has some money available at rates lower than its newest money-raising venture helps it keep the amount farmers must pay to its present level. He did not know how long it could stay under nine per cent but said he agrees with President Ford that "the biggest single problem we face is inflation. We must take some of the things we don't like if we are going to curb inflation. All of us must or interest rates will go up and so will the cost of food and fiber."

Heitz said the FLB of St. Louis is raising $108 million on Oct. 22 where it will pay 8.75 per cent interest.

In the election of directors, Willard Simpson, 50, Franklin Grove, and Lester Wichman, 42, Bailyville, were chosen to the board.

American TV drama acquires accent

By HELEN BOHN JORDAN
LONDON — (NEA) — "Has British television served as inspiration for what seems to be a renaissance of drama on American television?"

This question was put to Shaun Sutton, head of the drama group for BBC Television, during a recent interview at the corporation's huge Television Center. Considered were a number of the excellent American-made (or produced) plays that illuminated the small screen last season — 'The Glass Menagerie,' 'QB VII,' 'Tell Me Where It Hurts' and 'The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman.' Also the extraordinary British drama series that American television audiences have seen in the last several years — 'Elizabeth R,' 'The Six Wives of Henry VIII,' 'War and Peace,' 'The Last of the Mohicans,' several adventures of Lord Peter Wimsey and the Emmy-winning 'Upstairs, Downstairs.'

Sutton obviously wanted to set the record very straight. "I don't know that I'd use the word 'inspiration' — it's too condescending. 'Reminder' is a better word. I grew up in the theater with a healthy respect for the American playwright. In the late 1930s and '40s, the best playwrights in the world were American."

Noting, though, that this theatrical excellence hadn't "rubbed off on television," Sutton said that the "reminder" influence of British television drama began with the showing of 'The Forsythe Saga' on public television during the 1969-70 season.

"I think 'The Saga' was a sort of reminder to American audiences that there was something else they would enjoy, other than westerns and police stories. And it was followed by much harder productions — 'Roads to Freedom' (based on novels by Sartre), 'Nana,' 'Jude the Obscure.' These also reminded Americans that there is another sort of television. To see 'Jude the Obscure' is very different from seeing a western. You might not enjoy it as much, but after two or three programs, you begin to like it."

Sutton used the word "harder" in the sense of "hard-edged," as opposed to "soft" drama, which indulges in theatrical conventions and stereotypes.

"There was a time in Hollywood films," he recalled, "when an Englishman was always characterized as a dude and slightly half-witted, just as when we showed an American, he was always a brash businessman, who left gum all over everything and had appalling manners! But I think we've gone past all that. Our drama is much keener-edged than it used to be and more acceptable to the American market."

Sutton believes the producer should have a high degree of creative independence. Consequently, BBC drama producers select their own scripts, hire dramatists and writers for adaptations, choose the directors they want to work with and do their own casting. They also exercise financial control.

"A producer is given a certain amount of money to do a show — and he does, most times. If he doesn't," Sutton said matter-of-factly, "he doesn't get asked again."

"If you have 30 small units composed of directors, producers and writers as we do, you may have one or two failures, but you'll get at least 25 different ideas," he observed. "And you'll get independent spirits and talents breaking through. It's these independent units out digging for gold all the time that our quality comes from."

Writers enjoy a similar sort of independence. "What is extraordinary about working for this part of the BBC is the amazing people you can get to write plays. And the amount of money they get is not very spectacular — it's a great deal less than they'd get for German or American television and about a quarter of what they would get for a movie," explains producer Mark Shivas, who is responsible for 'The Six Wives of Henry VIII.' "But because writers are allowed a certain amount of freedom of expression, and air fairly sure their dramas will be transmitted, we are able to attract the most extraordinary caliber: John Osborne, Kingsley Amis, Frederick Raphael (who wrote the film 'Darling')."

New plays and fresh adaptations logically appeal to good actors, "even though they get much less than in America," as Shaun Sutton indicated. "Nevertheless, there are actors who live exclusively on television, as there are writers. We cast about 15,000 speaking parts a year, plus about 20,000 extras. That's a lot of people."

Even with talent comparatively inexpensive, there is a money problem. The general inflationary pinch is having its effect on the production schedule.

"We're doing slightly less each year to keep the quality up. This comes first, and we're having to be very ingenious about it," Sutton said. "Quality of scripts, acting and directing is foremost. The presentation of authentic scenery and costumes may retreat a bit to keep the play in the foreground. Is it absolutely necessary to have real prints on the walls? ... Do we really need genuine antiques just lying about?"

Along with the BBC's carefully thought out (and enforced) methods of cost control, coproduction money from the United States has "helped keep the numbers of productions up," as Sutton put it, in the face of inflation. Coproduction investment from Time-Life Films has enabled the BBC to undertake the epic proportions of 'War and Peace,' as well as such complex, costly series as Alistair Cooke's 'America,'

Kenneth Clark's 'Civilisation' and Jacob Bronowski's 'The Ascent of Man.' This last production, a history of science filmed throughout the world, will be shown in this country by PBS early in 1975.

Among other coproductions which Sutton feels American audiences will see eventually are a series of dramas based on Churchill's 'History of the English Speaking Peoples' and 'Shoulder to Shoulder,' six plays about the early feminists. The latter series, made possible by an investment from Warner Bros., has already been screened in this country by a group of NOW members. (They were "thrilled with it," Sutton reported, apart from their objection to the use of the word "girl" for "woman.")

In addition to coproductions, the more recent concept of the "program exchange" is helping to cope with inflationary inroads into BBC programming funds derived solely from license fees to set owners (11 pounds a year, or about $25) and from program sales. These sales amount to about one per cent of the license income, even though the BBC product is sold to more than 100 countries (1973 figures). As the witty Sutton puts it, "We get a check for seven shillings and tuppence — for a whole play!"

During the coming season, the BBC will "exchange" its new production of 'Robinson Crusoe,' dramatized for adults, with NBC's version of Arthur Miller's 'After the Fall.'

"SCORPIO"

(Oct. 24-Nov. 21)

I am a Scorpio, and have been told on several occasions that I am a perfectionist, which greatly upsets me. I feel because a person likes and wants to do things right, should be credited for this and not considered a perfectionist. There was only one perfectionist and that was Christ.

The Scorpio Aurascope states we are perfectionists, friendly, warm hearted, and the Scorpio success stories are usually the result of hard work and self discipline. We love to travel. The eyes will be piercing with hypnotic intensity. The tone of the voice is velvety soft and husky or sharply cutting.

Petula Clark, Lulu, Joni Mitchell and Goldie Hawn attest to these also. And so does your TV star Marlo Thomas. A Scorpio model is Jean Shrimpton, of the big, big eyes. Folk singer Mary Travers, of Peter, Paul and Mary fame, is an attractive Scorpio who sets her own style artistically.

The element is water. We are vivacious and affectionate one minute, self possessed, defiant the next.

We are in between seasons and this is an important time for us to take exceptionally good care of our bodies, to keep the warm glowing sun-tan longer and to prevent the dryness of the next cold winter months.

These next few months bathe in luxury—make time for a beauty bath of fragrance. Carry the same fragrance through your entire bath. Start with a bath oil—oil is essential now, our skin needs it due to the summer sun dryness—use the soap, lubricate the skin lavishly with a body lotion, dust with powder, and spray from head to toe with cologne. Highlight with perfume.

You will make a lingering, lovely entrance wherever you go.

Stop at Kline's Cosmetic Dept. and choose the fragrance for your bath.
